BRAVES OF SAANICH WIN CANOE EPIC

Record of Three Wins By Saanich V Crew at International Event at Penn's Cove, Equalled Only By Question Mark of Skagit

BURRARD TAKES SECOND PLACE

Canadian Press
Coupeville, Wash., Aug. 10.—Braves of the Saanich tribe celebrated today their triumph in the international war canoe races on wind-furrowed Penn's Cove.

The ten-length victory of their craft, the Saanich V, driven by eleven stalwart men, gave them a record of three wins in the annual regatta—a mark equalled only by the Question Mark of the Skagit, which is now in a Philadelphia Museum.

Battling whitecaps that swamped three of the hewn-log canoes, the Saanich paddlers from British Columbia drove their canoe over the three-mile course in twenty-three and a half minutes yesterday.

While the time was slow compared with college crew marks of fourteen minutes for three miles, the curling waves would have swamped an eight-oared shell before it started.

Second place went to a British Columbia canoe, the Burrard of Burrard Inlet, in twenty-four minutes. The Rainbow of the Seattle tribe at Darrington, Wash., placed third in twenty-four and a half minutes; the Chee of the La Conner Indians, fourth, twenty-five minutes, and the White Cloud of the Skagit, fifth, twenty-seven minutes.

CANOE SWAMPED
An instant after crossing the finish line, the Chee swamped and great yells went up as the braves worked desperately to keep it afloat. The Lone Eagle of the Lummi tribe, Lummi Island, and the Lummi from the same place, filled with water before the finish.

Fire Threatens King's Ranch

Canadian Press
Calgary, Aug. 10.—The "EP" Ranch, owned by King Edward VIII, was endangered by a bush fire raging in the Fokis district, forty-five miles south of here last night.
"The fire is running wild," E. S. Heustis, assistant superintendent of the provincial forest reserve, reported. The flames had already entered settlements a short distance west of the King's ranch, reports said, and were licking around the buildings of the Forbes and Cartwright ranch.

LEAVE BOAT IN NIGHT CLOTHES

G. Murrell and Wife Swim Ashore When Boat Lists; Walk Barefoot

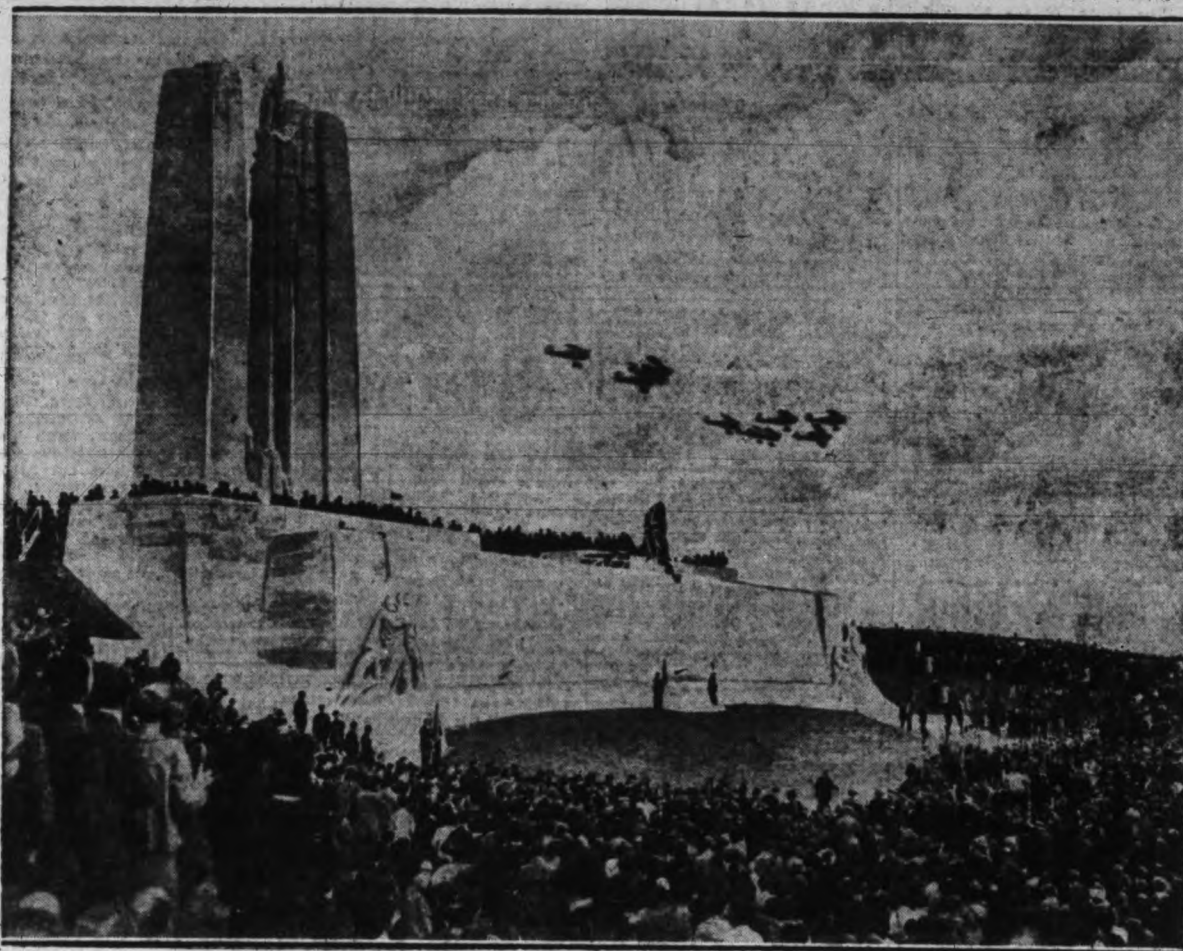

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Murrell, 2901 Cameron Street, while sleeping aboard their fish packer off the Oak Bay waterfront, were forced to take to the water and swim ashore early this morning when their craft settled on a rock and took a precarious list, according to a report from the Oak Bay police.

They were picked up about 3 o'clock this morning walking barefoot along Oak Bay Avenue in their dripping clothes by an Oak Bay police officer in a prowler car.

According to details given police the couple moored their boat in Oak Bay last night. Between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning when the tide began to drop, the boat settled on a rock and started to list. When Mr. and Mrs. Murrell awoke, the craft was in a precarious position.

Shortly after they took to the water the boat turned on its side. The fish-packer was salvaged and beached this morning with minor damage.

Vimy Memorial Is Unveiled By King Edward

With British and French war planes dipping in salute to Canada's war dead, the King unveiled the magnificent memorial erected by Canada on land devoted to the Division by France and where many Canadians sleep their final sleep. The above picture shows the scene at the moment His Majesty dropped the enfolded flag from the breeding figure. The Vimy pilgrims, 6,000 Canadian veterans and their kin, are seen grouped about the foot of the monument. President Lebrun of France and several Canadian ministers were present.

NOMINATIONS IN QUEBEC

Two Hundred Candidates to Contest Ninety Seats in Eastern Election

Canadian Press
Quebec, Aug. 10.—This is nomination day in Quebec, and aspirants for election next Monday to the Provincial Legislature are filing their official nomination papers and $200 deposit with the returning officer of their constituency.

It was expected about 200 candidates will be named for the Legislative Assembly's ninety seats. Nominations in three counties, Gaspé, South, Charlevoix—Saguenay and Magdalen Islands, were held in advance last week. In each case a straight two-party fight developed between Liberal Government candidates and supporters of Maurice Duplessis and his Union Nationale, coalition of Conservatives and former Liberals.

Majority of the eighty-seven remaining seats in which nominations are taking place today anticipated a straight duel between the Union Nationale and the Liberal nominees, but three other parties had announced candidates in Montreal seats.

Mrs. Jas. Galloway Killed On Sidewalk By Car In Seattle

Victorian Struck Down While Walking With Her Husband Few Minutes After Reaching Seattle For Holiday; Driver Deserts Car and Disappears

Mrs. Catherine Galloway, 2818 Rock Bay Avenue, died in the Seattle General Hospital last night from injuries received when a motor car mounted the sidewalk and struck her. Mrs. Galloway had just arrived in Seattle to spend a holiday with her husband, James Galloway, a member of the staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, when she was knocked down.

Seattle police today were searching for an unidentified man who leaped from his automobile and ran away from the pursuers after his machine crushed and fatally injured Mrs. Galloway.

Mrs. Galloway died in hospital about six hours after the car, careening after a collision with a second machine, bulletted on to the pavement and struck her.

Mr. Galloway, who was walking with his wife, was not hurt. Two women passengers in the car, questioned by police, said they did not know the name of the man driving the car. They had met him at a hotel and the car belonged to one (Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Coastguard Vessels Plunge Through Turbulent Seas To Aid People Imperiled on Lake Michigan; Drenching Rains Aid Crops in Drought Areas

Associated Press
Chicago, Aug. 10.—A furious storm left a trail of damage along the Lake Michigan shore today, but the accompanying drenching downpour revived late crops in an important section of the United States drought belt.

Scores of boats were caught in the squall. Coastguard vessels labored through turbulent seas to the rescue of fourteen sailing sloops, launches and yachts and several scores of passengers.

The 334-foot freighter, "Arthur Orr," inbound from Canada, was pulled from the breakwater near the Chicago lighthouse by two tugs. Twenty men were aboard.

Doug Peden Leads Canada To Victory

Victoria Star Scores Nine Points in Last Ten Minutes to Be Big Factor in 34 to 23 Win Over Latvia in Olympic Basketball Play-downs

Canadian Press
Berlin, Aug. 10.—Led by Doug Peden, who provided the punch in a brilliant last-half rush, the Canadian team reached the third round of the Olympic basketball play-downs by defeating a rugged team from Latvia by 34 to 23 yesterday evening.

Peden, young brother of the famous bike-rider "Torchy," scored nine points in the last ten minutes to pull the Maple Leaf team out of the hole.

The heavy but fast moving Letts cut loose with an aggressive game in the opening minute and before the struggle was five minutes old they had forged into an 8 to 0 lead. The Canadians steadied and struck back brilliantly, but half-time found them on the short end of a 12 to 9 count.

As the game neared an end it appeared the Letts might whip the Canadians, generally figured as finalists with the United States, but Peden's superlative leadership finally demoralized the opposition.

Rushing continually from his guard position, the young Victorian fired the whole Canadian team with aggressiveness and the Letts didn't have a chance.

The early part of the game was marked by the flashy play of Gordie Aitchison, Windsor. In the final analysis he shared scoring honors with Peden, each collecting eleven points. Aitchison was the hub of many short-passing attacks. The Letts were able to answer with the same type of offensive, but they could not match the final power-plays engineered by Peden.

The Canadians, who downed Brazil 24 to 17, in the first round, are idle now until tomorrow.

The teams:
Canada—Aitchison (11); Peden (11); Jim Stewart, Windsor, (6); Iryn Meretka, Windsor (4); Istan Allison, Windsor, (2); Chuck Chapman, Victoria; Malcolm Wiseman, Windsor.

Latvia—Jurisneck (12); Melders (6); Anderson (3); Ruja (2); Elmuts, Grundmaris.

Results of other second-round games follow:
United States 52, Estonia 28.
Philippines 32, Mexico 30.
Japan 43, Poland 31.
Uruguay 36, Egypt 23.
Peru 29, China 21.
Italy 58, Germany 46.
Switzerland 35, Czechoslovakia 12.
Chile 23, Brazil 18.

Relief Recipients Express Satisfaction as Prosperity Certificates Buy Merchandise in Edmonton Stores

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Aug. 10.—Satisfaction was general today among relief recipients who received prosperity certificates as wages for July work and the usual reaction of the majority is: "When can we work for some more of them?"

A reporter's survey among men who worked on certificate-financed road projects in Beverly, Edmonton suburb, found them content after getting their first pay cheques in certificates.

Most of the certificates circulating in Edmonton were those paid to men employed on the Beverly job as those given to men on outlying projects have not yet had time to reach the city, it was believed.

The Beverly men, paid Friday, flocked into Edmonton Saturday to shop. The manager of a department store accepting certificates said the store got $3,000 worth of "scrip" business during Friday and Saturday. It was crowded all day Saturday. Most of the men made large purchases.

One of the Beverly workers, Harry Holcroft, stated the men were "bitter" at first because they would

Meanwhile the Madrid government claimed the capture of thirteen towns dominated by rebels, while in the far north the insurgent forces massed for an offensive against San Sebastian and Irun.

Government claims covered: Repulse of a rebel attack at Navetperal, in the Guadarrama mountains, with 800 Fascists reported killed, capture of the town of Loguona and seizure of a munitions factory in Oviedo province, occupation of ten towns in Teruel province during an advance on Zaragoza, surrender of the towns of Gelsa and Oia to a loyal column, also marching on Zaragoza, and capture of Ibiza, capital of an island of the same name in the Balearics.

Reports from rebel lines near the Franco-Spanish border related insurgent forces were gathered for an attack on both San Sebastian and Irun. The Madrid war ministry said insurgents at Burgos and Valladolid faced the danger of epidemics because the bodies of the dead were not being buried.

Fascists claimed victory at Huesca in northeastern Spain in an engagement costing the lives of 100 loyalist troops.

LOYALIST CLAIMS
By RAMON BLARDONY
Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press

Madrid, Aug. 10.—Capture by loyalists of thirteen rebel-dominated Spanish towns was reported today as the government predicted a quick end for the Fascist rebellion.

The war ministry claimed these victories for the loyalists.

1. Capture of Loguona and seizure of a munitions factory by militia led by Col. Gonzalez Pena in Oviedo province. Rebel fatalities were declared to number 150, while no loyalists were said to have been killed or wounded.

The importance of the capture, the ministry declared, came from the town's location as the only gap through which the rebel forces of Colonel Aranda might escape from Oviedo.

2. Occupation of ten towns in Teruel province by government (Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

WILL DISCUSS LAND SCHEMES

Provincial and Federal Authorities to Confer on Relief Plans

Plans for helping persons living on the land who draw relief, will be discussed shortly by provincial and federal authorities, Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, indicated today.

An official of the B.C. relief department will meet for Ottawa this evening to leave federal officials on the subject.

For the last two years the provincial government has been carrying on a scheme by which relief recipients who have land are paid allowances as wages for working on their own property, either in clearing or cultivating. This enables them to gain a "existence" while bringing their land to a state where it will support them. A considerable measure of success has met this scheme at several land points especially.

The provincial authorities feel that before a large "back-to-the-land" programme is launched, those already on the land must be re-established. This plan, it is understood, will be laid before federal officials.

forces during an advance on Zaragoza from the southeast.

Surrender of the towns of Gela and Oia, loyalists are marching on Zaragoza.

Since the first week of fighting, which the rebels hoped would carry them into Madrid, loyalist victories have been achieved in the north, in the south, along the eastern seaboard and in areas bordering the Straits of Gibraltar.

In the far north loyalist garrisons at San Sebastian, Bilbao, Irun and other seaboard cities fought desperately to prevent rebel access to the sea which would permit the importation of additional arms and ammunition.

Reports said insurgents were congregating south of San Sebastian and nearby Irun for assaults on both cities. Fascists claimed a victory at Huesca in Northeastern Spain.

On the diplomatic front efforts of the Socialist French government to obtain a general European non-intervention accord continued in the face of a new incident in which a British, Capt. Rupert Saville, was killed aboard his yacht by a rebel shell in Gijon Harbor.

Dispatches from Girona stated a military committee had taken over the episcopal palace there and seized 35,000,000 pesetas in securities and cash (approximately $4,750,000).

Road Deaths In Washington

Four Killed as Car Stripped By Plunge; Week-end Toll Is Ten

Seattle, Aug. 10.—Washington state's week-end toll today stood at ten deaths from automobile accidents and three from drowning.

An automobile wreck so violent only the chassis was left in one piece and the bodies of four persons scattered over a hillside fifty to 150 feet apart, was one of the worst accidents to happen in the state this year.

A passing motorist, yesterday, on the Mount Misery road, forty-one miles from Pomeroy, casually looked down a hillside into a valley one mile below. His eye was attracted to a path ripped through the underbrush.

He notified police. One mile down the steep bank they found the chassis of the automobile and around it five persons, four of them dead.

The dead: Charles (Cotton) Harmon, superintendent of the state game farm at Walla Walla.

John Milton, Walla Walla.

Pierre J. Dube, Walla Walla.

William Berry, Walla Walla.

The unconscious form of Lester Harmon, eighteen, the elder Harmon's son, was found near the body of his father. He lies seriously injured in a Walla Walla hospital.

Police said they believed young Harmon jumped out of the plunging automobile as it dropped.

Food was becoming scarce. Officials admitted even the water was being rationed.

SANTANDER TAKEN
Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 10.—The town and province of Santander, on the Bay of Biscay, have fallen before rebel attacks, insurgents at Retuerto, Spanish Morocco, announced today.

Madrid, Aug. 10 (Canadian Press).—Two huge portable bars mounted on a truck chassis rolled out of Madrid today to make life more pleasant for loyalist troops in Guadarrama mountains. Three other trucks carried refreshments.

Alicante, Spain, Aug. 10 (Canadian Press from Havana).—Fourteen members of the crew of a German merchant ship deserted to join the Spanish leftist militia here, it was reported today.

be paid in certificates. Now all they wanted was to get to work again for them, he said.

"One family was angry with me for urging the father to work for certificates," Mr. Holcroft declared. "Yesterday they shook my hand. One boy, nineteen-year-old, had never worked before. Today he bought himself a suit with scrip."

"One of the men had not received a pay cheque in four years. He was tickled to death to earn a living again, although he was strong against the plan at first."

A sub-former, H. N. Nickerson, said it was his first "decent" pay in three years. He added it was better pay than he got while working in a coal mine.

The majority of the Beverly outfit worked twenty-eight-hour days during July. They were paid 40 cents an hour for laborers, 55 for sub-formers and 70 for foremen. The average pay was about $65.

On many of these projects the government intends to pay each man $40 a month and withhold the balance of his wage each month until the work is completed. Then while the man is out of work, he will continue to receive $40 a month until he has received all he earned.

If a man has a large family and $40 is not sufficient for a month, the full amount earned will be paid at the end of each month.

In Beverly most of the men employed had large families and had been on relief for some time, so they were given all they had earned.

D. B. Mullin, M.L.A. for Edmonton whose efforts resulted in starting of the Beverly project, declared since the men had been paid he had received numerous calls from workers who wanted to tell him they were "well satisfied."

English Lumberman Says Threat of Cheap Russian Timber Has Passed

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Threat of cheaply-manufactured Russian timber to the Canadian lumber trade has passed in the opinion of E. B. Monkhouse, president of the Timber Trades Federation of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Monkhouse arrived in Montreal, Saturday, accompanied by E. H. B. Boulton, general secretary of the Timber Development Association. "You don't have to worry about Russia," Mr. Monkhouse declared.

Prospects for Canada in the British market are encouraging," he said. "Canadian lumber products are in favor in Great Britain, and it is likely that they will continue to be in demand."

Mr. Monkhouse and Mr. Boulton are en route to Vancouver to attend the jubilee celebrations. Also they said, they would "talk a little business."

KING EDWARD JOINS YACHT

Cruises in Adriatic Following Incognito Trip Through Europe

Associated Press
Sibenik, Yugoslavia, Aug. 10.—A brilliant Adriatic sun reddened the faces of King Edward and thousands of Yugoslavs today—of the former while they were looking at the Dalmatian scenery, of the latter while they were looking for the King.

The yacht of the King of England, on a month's vacation, was sighted several times cruising among the scores of nearby islands.

Persons ashore with the aid of glasses were able to pick out the figure of the King strolling about the deck and apparently enjoying himself thoroughly.

Because the Yugoslav warship which was to accompany the yacht remained here, it was believed the Nahlin would return to Sibenik today.

His Majesty left the yacht before it sailed and went to the railroad station from which he returned with a woman guest wearing a blue dress and white hat.

Belgrade, Aug. 10.—King Edward was welcomed by Prince Paul of Yugoslavia when he arrived yesterday evening at the Austro-Yugoslav frontier station at Jasenovac.

The Yugoslav regent accompanied the British monarch to Ljubljana, whence he continued his journey to Sibenik on the Adriatic coast, where he will board the yacht Nahlin.

Hope For Pact On Neutrality

International Tension Slackens, Says Paris Report

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Aug. 10.—International tension slackened today, Paris last night reported an easier feeling with the confident hope of an international agreement on neutrality in Spain.

Events during the week-end follow: Germany—Assured the British Government that Germany has not intervened in the Spanish civil war and that her warships have been ordered to preserve neutrality. She reserves the right to take special measures to protect her nationals in Spain. She is understood to be desirous of an agreement with Great Britain for the mutual protection of their interests in Spain.

France—The government banned the export of all arms to Spain. If other powers continue their supplies, France reserves the right to resume freedom of action.

Italy—Lodged an official protest at Madrid following the death of five Italians in Spain. Mussolini will not consider the French neutrality proposal until he returns from his holiday this week.

Portugal—Continues to support the French appeal for neutrality. "Franco-British co-operation," comments the Paris newspaper Le Temps, "has been the reality whose value for safe-guarding peace must be fully appreciated. Britain's determination to stand beside France for a policy of non-intervention will doubtless help bring Germany to regard the proposed agreement with favor."

Portugal—French and British diplomatic representatives discussed the neutrality pact with the Portuguese foreign minister.

Yet while the international skies clear somewhat, the outlook darkens in Spain itself. Heavy offensive by sea, land and air are imminent. Both sides claim victory within a few days. The bombardment of the islands of Ibiza by government forces was hailed by permit British warships to take off twenty British subjects.

In the Far East gloomy views are held. The newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun of Tokyo sees the possibility of the civil war dividing the whole of Europe into two camps. The left camp, says the paper, will presumably comprise Britain, France, Belgium, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Turkey. The right camp—Italy, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria, Finland and the small Baltic states.

"Under such conditions," it adds, "there is no guarantee that the present civil war will not lead to a second world war."

Taxi Strikers Ask Conciliation

Canadian Press
Montreal, Aug. 10.—Leaders of Montreal's striking taxi-drivers announced today they had applied to the Dominion Ministry of Labor for appointment of a board of conciliation.

The cab drivers, numbering 1,000, who went on strike Friday, are seeking a reduction from $36.75 to $23 of monthly rates paid the Diamond Taxicab Association for concession rights.

ALBERTA SCRIP NAME DEBATED

Term "Velocity Dollar" Suggested By Provincial Secretary Causes Comment

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 10.—While "velocity" may be all right as applied to the Alberta government's prosperity certificates, "dollar" may cause complications if given provincial approval, it was suggested here today.

Finance department officials were reluctant to comment on the name "velocity dollar," which western dispatches said had been used and unofficially approved by Provincial Secretary E. C. Manning of Alberta, because the question of the province's right to issue prosperity certificates is now before the Justice Department.

It was suggested, however, anything which tended to designate the certificates as money might weaken the argument they are not designed to pass as such. The right of the province to issue money might well, it is understood, be challenged under the B.N.A. Act.

Town Would Go On Tax Strike

Mayor of Blairmore Says More Paid Out in Relief Than Collected

Blairmore, Alta., Aug. 10.—This coal-mining town no longer can support what Mayor W. Knight says is an excessive relief burden, and the mayor, during the week-end, invited his fellow citizens to go on a "tax strike."

"We've been paying more in relief than we have been collecting in taxes, and it might as well stop," he said.

Mayor Knight said much Blairmore property had been taken over by the municipality for tax sale, but not one house has yet been sold— "and there is no intention of selling any, either."

Blairmore is 180 miles southwest of Calgary.

of the women, Mrs. Margaret Michels, Seattle. The other woman gave her name as Miss Bertha Davis, Seattle. The two women said the man had offered to park their car for them and they let him drive it for them.

Hospital attaches said Mrs. Galloway suffered back, arm, leg and collarbone fractures and severe shock. Mrs. Galloway had just embarked from the Victoria boat with her husband at the Lenora Street dock. They were walking up when the car bore down on them.

Mrs. Galloway was well known in Victoria, where she had resided for the last twenty-four years. She was born in Midcalder, Scotland, fifty-two years ago. She is survived by her widower, her father, who has been a patient in the Jubilee Hospital for some weeks; two sons, James and John; two daughters, Janet and Mary; three brothers, John Scouler, manager of the Island Freight Service Ltd., and Thomas Scouler of Victoria, and James Scouler of Vancouver, and one sister, Mrs. Janet Hoskyn of this city.

Mrs. Galloway's other sister was killed in an automobile accident eight years ago. She was on her way to Victoria to spend her honeymoon when the car in which she was riding in Vancouver was in an accident and she was killed.

Vancouver, Aug. 10.—A. Klovus, rescued by crew members after he fell overboard from the North Vancouver ferry, was recovering in hospital today from shock. Klovus, sixty-two, plunged into the waters of Burrard Inlet from the main deck a few minutes out of dock. The boat stopped immediately and Klovus was fished from the water.

WAR ACE IN AIR CRASH

Lieut.-Col. A. Fawcus Killed With Companion Off Sussex Coast

Paghram, Eng., Aug. 10.—Lieut.-Col. Arthur Fawcus, fifty, holder of a brilliant war record, was killed today when a Royal Air Force auxiliary plane crashed in the sea off the Sussex coast.

Pilot Officer Michael Richard Montague was also killed.

Rescuers found the plane in four feet of water.

Lieut.-Col. Fawcus was a resident of the Marakwet-patrol in that territory in 1911. In the Great War he was mentioned in dispatches three times, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the French Legion of Honor.

Admiral Standley, who has been acting as navy secretary during the recent extended illness of Swanson, told newsmen as he left the White House, that recent news of a European squadron was discussed.

He did not say, however, whether the present troubled situation, Spain or conditions in Europe generally prompted the conversations.

APOLLO WILL BEAT RETREAT

Colorful Ceremony to Be Observed on Empress Lawns August 21

The colorful and historic ceremony of "beating the retreat," revived in Victoria last year by H.M.S. Danae, will be repeated during the city's observance of Navy Week this year, it was announced by officials in charge of the function today.

The band and men of H.M.S. Apollo will perform the ceremony on the lawns of the Empress Hotel on Friday evening, August 21.

The event, a survival of the old days in which military units were gathered together at dusk before going to their quarters, dates far back in British history. Its modern presentation is a function equally as colorful as that of changing the guard.

Last year thousands attended the ceremony.

Vatican Makes Strong Protest

Madrid Government Asked to Prevent Further "Acts of Sacrilege"

Canadian Press from Havas
Vatican City, Aug. 10.—The Holy See today made "energetic remonstrances" to the Spanish Government in protest against "acts of sacrilege" committed in Spanish churches. The Osservatore Romano announced.

The Vatican's protest was prompted by the reported seizure of church properties, the use of churches as hospitals and headquarters by Spanish loyalist forces, and the eviction of monks and nuns from monasteries taken over by the workers.

The Osservatore Romano said the Madrid government had been asked "to intervene" to halt this type of extremism and failing that at least publicly to declare itself "opposed to this type of violence."

"The murder of churchmen, monks and nuns and the destruction of churches and convents, which have been prevented from exercising their office, could not have but helped provoke the Holy See's protest."

"While we desire to admit that the Madrid government is faced with difficulties in suppressing these regrettable excesses by elements which it armed itself, we must not forget that in the past also the Holy See's reiterated and insistent reminders did not succeed in prevailing upon the government effectively to intervene and punish acts of violence against the church."

Alberta's Social Credit Legislation Attacked By T. Ewan at Edmonton

Edmonton, Aug. 10.—Premier Albert Ewan, "hoodwinked" Albertans into voting for him in the provincial election last year, in the opinion of Tom Ewan, trade union leader and member of the national executive of the Communist Party of Canada.

In an address here last night Mr. Ewan said Social Credit legislation enacted at the last session of the Alberta Legislature contains all of the elements from which Fascism can grow.

Pork Shortage Is Threatened

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A pork shortage in the United States was threatened today as western farmers held their corn for fancy drought prices.

Hogs have been hurried to market in "much larger" numbers than usual for the last month, shippers reported, and higher prices this winter or next year were foreseen as a result.

"There is no longer any question that drought damage to the corn crop will be very severe," Edward Wynne, one of the leading provisions specialists on the board of trade, explained.

"Confident that prices will rise to fancy heights (September futures were quoted at $1.07½ a bushel on Saturday) the farmers are holding back their corn to sell rather than use it as feed. They know they will get a good price without running feeding risks."

Pork prices were firm, Wynne continued, and in the rush to cash in on the drought from both ends hog growers were getting rid of hogs which had not yet farrowed.

The specialist said this trend would create a pig shortage next year similar to the one the New Deal's crop control programs brought in 1935. Five million pigs were killed then.

Cabinet To Discuss Western Drought

Provinces To Be Represented At Ottawa Conference

With Return of Ministers to Capital From Europe,
Government Will Take Up
Important Matters;
Premier Mackenzie King to Leave For Geneva in September

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The end of this week will witness the return from abroad of at least four members of the Dominion cabinet, while a fifth, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines, is due to arrive from the west. With this addition of five to its ranks the cabinet will be in a position to settle down and deal with several important matters laid aside temporarily during the dog days. Before it does, however, it is expected attention will be given the western drought situation and its accompanying hardships.

A conference with provincial representatives will be held soon after return of the ministers.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, who comes from Saskatchewan, one of the provinces hit hard by drought, will tackle it on his return.

The four ministers who are due to arrive from Europe are Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance; Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions; Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defence, and Mr. Gardiner.

For the time being Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, will remain in Europe, where, it is reported, he is meeting with success in his negotiations for wider markets. It is now reported Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, will stay over with him. Mr. Euler may get back to Canada about the end of the month.

PREMIER TO GENEVA

From his ministers who have been there Prime Minister Mackenzie King will be able to glean first-hand information about the European situation which should be of value to him when he goes to Geneva for the League of Nations meeting in September.

It is expected he will be accompanied to that meeting by Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Minister without portfolio, who has had long experience in representing Canada at the League. Dr. O. D. Skelton, under-secretary for external affairs, will be in the Canadian delegation.

FINANCING OF LEAGUE TOLD

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Methods of financing the League of Nations were described to the Canadian Institute on Economics and Politics at Geneva Park, near here, yesterday by Sir Herbert Ames, first treasurer of the league, from 1919 to 1926.
Accepting the seven-year contract as financial director meant giving up his parliamentary career, resigning from all boards of which he was a member, and the probable disposal of his home, he said. However, after reading the covenant of the League of Nations and realizing what such a league would mean to the world, Sir Herbert said no other desire was uppermost in his mind.

Sir Herbert was given the task of raising money for the league. He determined to follow the universal postal system of international financing. The British Government had promised 10,000 pounds sterling, and the French Government $80,000.

"We got the heads of departments together and made up a budget for the first period. It came to about $1,000,000," he said. Difficulties in drafting a diplomatic letter and of obtaining money were outlined. Letters were sent to thirty-two states. "The lot of being financial director for that first year was not a happy one. There were times when I did not know if I could meet the payroll."

The league began to function January 16, 1920. At the first meeting in Paris the only thing done was to appoint the Saar governing commission. In July, 1920, a meeting was held in San Salvador, Spain.

Next to Geneva to find the League quarters, Sir Herbert and two others bought the Hotel National for $1,000,000. Financial conditions improved, and the building was paid for in three and a half years.

Two of the major problems, he said, were the mistrust of League members over the way funds were handled and the way shares to be contributed by the nations were apportioned.

The first difficulty was overcome when an investigation committee returned a commendatory report. The second was mastered when a system was instituted whereby nations were classed and their ability to pay judged. Financial affairs were based on the pre-war gold franc.

"The problem of the League now is to work out a system whereby nations which, in violation of all treaties and promises, set out to conquer others, might be dealt with," he said.

"I don't believe the League is going to crash. We may have a case of suspended animation until the fever of dictatorship in Europe is over but I am confident the League will come back."

Shooting Stars in Heavens Tomorrow

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The best chance of the year to see shooting stars is expected to be tomorrow night. During that night, according to Dr. Charles P. Olivier, director of the Flower Observatory of the University of Pennsylvania here, is the time of the maximum of the Perseid meteor shower, which comes every August.

The moon then will be two days past last quarter, and will not rise until after midnight, so that its glare will not interfere with the show as it did last year.

Almost any clear dark night it is possible to see about one or two meteors, or "shooting stars," an hour. They are not actually stars, but tiny bits of cosmic dust, no larger than a grain of sand in most cases.

Their high speed, as they enter the earth's atmosphere from outer space, causes them to burn on account of the air friction, and they disappear in a flash of light, while about fifty or seventy-five miles above the ground. Most of those appearing on ordinary nights are actually visitors from outside the solar system, and they may move in any direction across the sky.

At certain times of the year, however, they appear in showers, one of the best of which is due this month. Then they will be seen at the rate of about one per minute. They will all seem to radiate from one part of the sky, the constellation of Perseus, the champion, a group of stars seen in the northeast about midnight, immediately south of the W-shaped constellation, Cassiopeia, the queen. For this reason they are called the Perseid meteors.

Actually the meteors are moving around the sun in parallel paths in a long elliptical swarm, which the earth crosses every August. Their luminous paths seem to converge in space in the direction from which they came, and this causes the effect of radiation.

The path in which they move is identical with that of Tuttle's comet, which was seen in 1862. Consequently these meteors are believed to be remnants of the comet.

Amateur observations of meteors are of great help to the professional, Dr. Olivier said. The simplest form that such observations can take is a record of the total number seen during each half-hour period, as from 11 to 11:30, 11:30 to midnight, etc.

Unfortunately, most meteors are seen after midnight, for then we are in the advancing hemisphere of the earth, and we meet them head-on. Those visible in the evening hours must catch up to us, and only a few are able to do so.

CROPS PLEASE P.E.I. FARMERS

Bumper Crops Putting Agrarians Back on Their Feet

By RALPH MORTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Charlottetown, Aug. 10. — Fertile fields filled with the richest crops in years have brought smiles to the farmers of Prince Edward Island.
While severe drought conditions burnt up agrarian areas in Canada and the United States, warm rains and moderate temperatures favored this million-acre farm where extremes of climate are unknown.
"Bumper crops this year are putting farmers right back on their feet," says Wellington McNeill, chief island exporter.

"Our acreage of potatoes is up 15 per cent over last year and there will be a considerable increase in yield per acre," commented Walter Shaw, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, as he noted that drought conditions in other parts of the country were likely to keep potato prices at factory levels. "When crops are growing well, there is always a feeling of optimism in the air."

"Look around for yourself," advised the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. W. H. Dennis. "We have not complete statistics available but your eye will show you conditions."

Farmers were busy in the fields bringing in the last of the biggest hay crop in years.
"The hay crop is almost a double yield. We'll have a large exportable surplus this year," explained Deputy Minister Shaw.

Chief crops for export are potatoes, turnips, oats and hay and those competent to judge claim there will be the largest exportable surplus in a period of twenty years.

FOOD SENT TO ESKIMOS

Emergency Rations Forwarded to Alaska Famine Area By U.S. Government

Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 10.—Two United States government agencies took steps Saturday to send a famine line which threatened more than 400 Eskimos living in isolated villages along the Northern Alaskan Coast.

Emergency rations were on the way to Barrow, Alaska, aboard the coast-guard cutter Northland, now cruising between Nome and Point Barrow. Commander W. K. Scammell reported by radio to Washington that his vessel probably could not reach port earlier than August 15.

Funds were made available by the Indian Affairs Bureau to its Barrow office for the purchase of supplies from trading ships in northern waters.

Food shipments also have been ordered from the United States, but William Zimmerman, acting commissioner of the Indian Affairs Bureau, said they could not be delivered in less than four weeks.

From Barrow, the northernmost city with an Indian Bureau office, supplies will be rushed by dog teams to the scattered Eskimo camps, many of which lie far to the east of any white settlement.

An unexpected shortage of seals and whales, which normally provide the main portion of the natives' food supply, was responsible for the famine, Zimmerman said.

EAT DOGS

Point Barrow, Alaska, Aug. 10.—Hungry Eskimos east of here are beginning to eat their dead dogs, Dr. Henry W. Griest, Presbyterian medical missionary, reported yesterday.

He said Frank Daugherty, Barrow reindeer supervisor, had been refused requested authority from his superiors to drive 3,000 reindeer to the Barter Island district where the government's native wards are reported near starvation.

Griest told of one native family killing one by one, their dog team, for food.

"They ate them, skin and all," he said. "How that the dogs are gone, they are lying down to die."

"The natives must have meat. The wolves have destroyed most of the herds to the eastward and the remainder there have little food value because they are in poor condition."

Lincoln Steffens Passes Suddenly

Associated Press

Carmel, Cal., Aug. 10.—Lincoln Steffens, writer and lecturer, died here yesterday from what Dr. R. A. Koecker, attending physician said was a heart attack. He was seventy.

Steffens had been in ill health two years.

At his bedside were his divorced wife, also widely known as a writer under the name of Ella Winter, and their ten-year-old son, Peter.

Steffens, like Miss Winter, admittedly radical in his views, wrote extensively on social and economic subjects. One of his last works was his autobiography.

The involuntary pattern of behavior in a startled person—shoulders drawn in, elbows bent, eyes blinking, and so on—can be caught by moving pictures slightly speeded above normal.

Quebec Wants Britain's Trade

Government to Double Commercial Expenditures in London, Says Godbout

Canadian Press

Louisville, Que., Aug. 10.—Quebec could sell ten or twenty times as much in England as she does now, and the Liberal Government intends to double present expenditures on her commercial agencies in London and elsewhere and to create similar bureaus in other countries, Premier Adélard Godbout said at a meeting here.

"We have a commercial bureau in London," said Mr. Godbout, "and because it costs the province something our adversaries promise to do away with it. As for me, I promise you that not only will we maintain that bureau but will open others because we want to find broader markets for the products of our farmers." A trade bureau would be established in the United States, the Premier promised, as well as in other countries.

BOLES MEETS WAR COMRADE

Canadian Press

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—Nearly twenty years ago John Boles, screen actor and singer, was serving as a spy on the western front.

One day, in Belgium, his suspicions were aroused by a man who posed as a peasant.

The "peasant" apparently suspected Boles, too. For two weeks they shadowed each other.

Then Boles raided the man's quarters and discovered he was serving not the Central Powers, but an ally, France.

Friendship established, each went his separate way.
Among the thousands of former Great War buddies here today for the California State American Legion convention was Paul Garmon, who suddenly spied Boles. Excitedly he grabbed the actor by the arm.

"Mon lieutenant," Garmon burst out in Gallic accents, "I haven't seen you since that time in Belgium when we worked so hard suspecting each other."

An Interesting Golf Event

IF THERE WERE ANY WHO feared that the Seniors' Northwest Golfers Association, which had its inception in 1923, would be a novelty for a year or so and die a natural death because that novelty had worn off, they must have been reassured by the fourteenth tournament which got under way at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club this morning. Not only is the entry list around the 150 mark, it also is perhaps one of the most representative to be recorded in the history of the organization. Which simply means that this annual event is as popular as ever and likely to remain so.

As we have said many times before, Victoria has a special interest in the doings of the Seniors' Northwest Golfers Association. It came into being through the enthusiasm and initiative of a Victorian, Senator G. H. Barnard—whose absence from the city will prevent him from competing this year—and it has become an unwritten part of the constitution of the organization that the annual tournament be held in this city. From time to time it has been urged by some of the members that a change of scene should be tried; but these suggestions have generally been frowned upon, so Victoria seems to have become established as the permanent host. This is an appreciation of our community in more ways than one, of which our citizens, whether golfers or not, are fully sensible.

This annual tournament, however, furnishes more than an opportunity for friendly contests in one of the most popular pastimes of the day; it brings together men of mature years from all walks of life—men prominent in business, representatives of the clergy and the bar, leaders of public thought, statesmen and politicians, as well as those who toil in unspectacular fields of endeavor. It is, therefore, an educational event, all the more important because of its international aspect. It furnishes an opportunity to renew old friendships and establish new ones. That this meet will be no less successful and enjoyable than those which have gone before, may be taken for granted. And it should not be forgotten that our own provincial Minister of Finance John Hart is out to defend—and, naturally, to retain if possible—the championship he carried off last year at Oak Bay.

Sixty Years Ago Today

TODAY IN THE ONTARIO CITY of Brantford they are celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of the world's first long-distance telephone message. It went over the wires of the Dominion Telegraph Company between Brantford and Paris—no, not Paris, France—Ontario. This "long distance" was seven miles. So August 10, 1876, was a notable one, not only as the beginning of one of the world's greatest and most revolutionary changes in verbal communication, but one which has played a part in modern scientific progress which no words adequately can describe.

The telephone was the invention of a youngster who first saw the light of day in Edinburgh on March 3, 1847—a Scot named Alexander Graham Bell. Sixty years ago today he was at the Paris end of the line, and on the other end of the one-way set were his father, Professor Alexander Melville Bell, and an uncle, Professor David C. Bell. In this experiment, young Bell arranged that persons in Brantford while to sing, talk or recite into the transmitter while he listened at the receiver. He could reply only by telegraph. He telegraphed to W. D. Griffin of the telegraph company, at Brantford, asking him to make certain changes in the arrangement of the coils. The new arrangement cleared articulation. The test was satisfactory to Bell and in his mind demonstrated the practicability of his invention.

At the age of twenty-three, Alexander Graham Bell came with his parents to Canada, afterward going to Boston University as a professor of vocal physiology—he had been trained in his father's system of restoring speech to deaf mutes—where he taught with outstanding success. In the record, however, the name of Bell stands out as the inventor of the telephone.

Bell lived until 1922. During the intervening period between 1876 and the immediate post-war years he had seen his small beginnings develop into something perhaps which his wildest dreams would not have permitted him to visualize at the time. To enter into a dissertation into what has followed that first "long-distance" message, presupposed is not necessary. The present generation is ever mindful of the boon which Alexander Graham Bell conferred on humanity sixty years ago today.

Vancouver Should Be Peeved

A LONDON, ENGLAND, ILLUSTRATED daily with a circulation around 2,000,000, carried the following news item in a recent issue:

To all on old boys of the school who have migrated to the Colonies. Dr. G. F. Morton, headmaster of Leeds Modern School, leaves Leeds today on a four months' empire tour covering 20,000 miles.

He will join the Queen Mary at Southampton, and after visiting America will cross to Canada. Then he is to "look up" former scholars at Toronto and Ottawa and go on to Winnipeg and Edmonton, visiting the backwoods of British Columbia. He will call at Victoria Island and later sail for New Zealand. Afterwards he will spend some time in Australia, chiefly in Sydney and Brisbane.

We do not know whether this headmaster of a modern school in the north of England was responsible for the wording of this item or whether its composition is the work of a member of the staff of the newspaper in question.

It will be noted, however, that Canada, Australia, and New Zealand are still "colonies" to some people and newspapers in Britain. And very often Canada and the United States appear to be all the same to some minds. Ottawa and Toronto, and Winnipeg and Edmonton are to have a visit from Dr. Morton. Then the "backwoods of British Columbia" and "Victoria Island" are to be honored before the distinguished educator sails for the southern "colonies."

The itinerary somewhat intrigues us. We do not know whether the Leeds Modern School headmaster knows that on his way west to the "backwoods of British Columbia" and "Victoria Island" he will have to exercise great care lest he stub his toe on a tricky little mound called Vancouver. At any rate, if he manages to evade the redskins and wild animals that abound thereabouts, and they do not notice him, we shall have to invite Chief Tassalla of their local tribe over to "Victoria Island" to do the honors here. That is to say, providing Chief McGeer Tassalla is not welcoming the Lord Mayor of London in his wigwag at the time.

Most travelers in Britain and most of the newspapers, of course, know empire geography and the political status of its constituent parts; but it is extraordinary that a newspaper published in London and read by nearly two millions daily should purvey "news" such as we have quoted.

The Miner's Lot

FIFTY-SEVEN YORKSHIRE COAL miners have just gone to their last rest in violent fashion as the result of an explosion in colliery workings near Barnsley. It was another of those all-too-frequent occurrences which remind us of the miner's lot.

There is a tendency at times for some of us to get impatient when the men who earn their daily bread in the bowels of the earth become mentally disturbed and ask for better working conditions, fewer hours of labor, and more money for their toil. At times, perhaps, a few extremists may go off "the deep end," but, take the miners all in all, they realize their obligations to society just as conscientiously as those of us who do not emerge from our day's labor with the dust of "black diamonds" on our faces.

Vancouver Island and other parts of Canada know what it is to go through what the people of Barnsley are going through at this time. That tragedy is another reminder that the miner never knows from one minute to another when Nature will go into one of her tantrums.

We who earn our living in the broad daylight have no conception of what it is to hack coal out of Mother Earth many hundreds of yards below daylight. Those who turn the corners of their mouths downwards every time there is talk of a miners' strike little realize under what conditions the miners work.

A New Medical Field

BECAUSE TWO HARVARD SCIENTISTS have devoted five years to patient, unremitting research, the world now finds itself a step nearer escape from the scourge of influenza. The scientists, Dr. W. F. Wells and Dr. H. W. Brown, have discovered that influenza virus, transmitted by the air we breathe, can be killed by contact with ultra-violet rays.

Their achievement opens a new field in preventive medicine, whereby the air in hospitals, theatres, schools and auditoriums may be freed from dangerous germs. It is definitely one more contribution to the welfare of civilization.

But while it represents much in itself, it is only one of the many ways by which science is making this a better world in which to live. Would that as much could be said for other human endeavors that are currently getting so much front-page space in the newspapers!

The one big question in the United States elections will be whether the voter is grateful for relief or still mad because he needs it.

As Chancellor Hitler has decided not to recognize negro competitors who are contributing to the success of the United States at the Olympic Games it may become necessary to award the laurel wreath to Africa.

The controversy raised by the Lord's Day Alliance over the Sunday fishing tournament at Brentwood recalls the fact that there is a law of King Charles II, which has never been repealed, and which if enforced would soon end all such fishing. Under this law it is illegal for anyone even to go out in a boat on Sunday, violators being liable to a severe sentence of imprisonment.

The new Nazi criminal code seems to be a model of persecution. A seventy-year-old resident of Gotha, for instance, was sentenced to fifteen months in prison for writing to a friend in Switzerland, expressing himself freely about certain Nazi party leaders. A Kiel professor got two months in jail and a fine of 1,000 marks for "criticizing the form of state in non-factual manner." Still another German citizen was sentenced to ten months in jail because he asserted that, during one of the recent butter and egg shortages, deliveries were being made to party leaders just the same.

A distinguished pundit predicts disaster and prepares for it—Mr. Gallico gives the ladies some unpleasant advice—Mrs. Wills Moody has some profound thoughts—thoughts—Mr. Motion foresees a dark future.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

PUNDIT

IN FRONT of this newspaper's street news bulletin the other day I was eavesdropping (bulletin board eavesdropping is a highly informative and not dishonorable sport) on a gentleman who has made a life study of public affairs. He reads voraciously. He writes letters to the papers. He knows what he is talking about. A pundit. Reading the latest bulletin from Spain, he said to his companion: "Just what I told you. Russia will intervene. Germany will intervene, and then you'll have Europe at war again. A real war this time, not a two-bit affair like the last one. Yes, and you haven't begun to hear yet of the way they'll fight the next war. They have all sorts of secret poison gases ready in Germany and France and England. Scientists have prepared disease germs, too, which will destroy whole populations. There is no doubt that when the war comes, the population of Europe and Britain will be wiped out. Our civilization unquestionably will be destroyed and, of course, the entire financial structure, including everything, life insurance and all, will collapse. Any day now."

As he and his friend walked up the street, I heard him say that he was going to build a new house in the Uplands this fall. He said his present one was too big, because he was sending his son to school in England for the next two years and his daughter was going to study interior decorating in New York.

Here was the authentic voice of the world's intelligentsia at the present juncture in history. Their reason tells them that war and disaster are coming sooner or later, at least in our time. But in their hearts they don't believe it and they are building houses and sending their sons to England. They don't believe it because they are of our kind. Probably that is the only reason any of us don't believe it.

NOW, GIRLS!

MR. PAUL GALLICO, who sets himself up to understand women, athletics, life and such minor phenomena, has some fairly brutal things to say to the girls in a recent issue of "Vogue." He says that "of some twenty-five sports in which ladies of today indulge publicly with vehemence and passion, there are only eight in which they do not manage to look utterly silly. Definitely interdicted, and never again to be performed before my eyes, is any sport in which women stick out places when they play, wear funny clothes, get out of breath, or perspire. It is a lady's business to look beautiful, and there are hardly any sports in which she seems able to do it."

Getting down to sordid details, Mr. Gallico finds that girls can't play tennis and be ladies, because they are not built to run swiftly like men. "Girls do something funny with their feet, or their knees go the wrong way. And the hip-hop-skip-skip sort of jig they do from side to side to court is just about as elegant as a giraffe in a great hurry. And besides, they get hot and put out their cheeks and some of them stick out their tummies."

They shouldn't run races, either, or play basketball or squash because "cuties should never go all out so that they breathe audibly and get mustaches of perspiration," and in golf they can't assume the proper posture in the rear and still be ladies. In fact, all ladies can do and still be ladies is shoot with a bow and arrow, angle for fish, fly airplanes, ride, skate, shoot and ski.

Now, girls, you know.

PHILOSOPHERS

BUT EVIDENTLY lady athletes, if they must play unladylike games, had better stick to them and not try something really difficult like thinking. If you want to see what happens to a great athlete when she gets out of the simple, easy realm of the physical and into the more difficult exercises of the mind, read what Helen Wills Moody has to say in Scribner's Magazine about "My Philosophy of Life."

Mrs. Moody summarizes her philosophy of life with these terrific mental forehead drives: "I think at the moment that I am perhaps certain of two things. The first, that nothing remains the same from day to day. The second thing, which I believe to be true is this: There is a reason for everything. There is nothing inexplicable. Seemingly illogical things can be explained, if the reasons are known. . . . Knowing the reason for things that are happening may be called, for want of a better word, understanding."

There is a philosophy of life for you. There is the distilled wisdom of years of championship athletics. Tennis must be great training for the brain and the philosophy. But why should a great tennis champion want to be a philosopher anyway? Tennis players get big headlines, sometimes even on the front pages. Philosophers get buried small type inside the paper. Everybody knows Mrs. Wills Moody. How many American philosophers can you name offhand?

DARK THOUGHT

MR. ROBERT R. MOTON, former president of the great negro college, Tuskegee Institute, has just written an article to show the extraordinary accomplishments and progress of the race in America during the last fifty years. What negro have done in the fields of science and industry will amaze you when you recall that they were nearly all slaves three-quarters of a century ago.

But more amazing still is their proliferation and their amalgamation with the white race. Intermarriage between whites and blacks and their descendants is such a widespread American phenomenon now that, according to undeniable statistics, there will be negro blood in every American within a few centuries and this continent will be inhabited largely by a slightly brown-skinned race with a partially African outlook on life.

This is something for you to think about in your spare time—that your great-great-great-great-grandson or his great-great-great-great-grandson will be able to trace his ancestry back into the dark jungles of the Congo. But this will be so commonplace then that he won't worry about it, so you needn't.

GERRY MOORE

From The Vancouver Sun

You must give Gerry his due. He gets what he wants. Yesterday, he stood at the front portal of the city hall that he campaigned for, saw his name etched on the stone.

He was presented with a golden trowel and with it smeared some mortar on the stone. There was a symbolism in his use of that tool. He has used the trowel of pertinacity and the mortar of astuteness in building his own career.

And he has used all materials which came to his hand. He has even used Mr. Bennett's as a stone, which is something not heretofore accomplished in Canada.

Letters to The Editor

REALLY VERY OLD

To the Editor:—In your article on Sun Dial for Parliament Square, Sunken Garden, I notice in the caption under the excellent illustration of the dial face you say "The latest in sun dials." This is very far from being so; it is a very old pattern and I should only be credited with calculating and designing a dial for Victoria which has been proved accurate and useful.

R. F. McKIE.

THANKS FROM HARD OF HEARING

To the Editor:—On behalf of the Victoria Club for the Hard-of-hearing I wish to express my sincere thanks to all who so kindly assisted in making the garden fête held at Colonel Wilby last Wednesday such a success. Great praise is due to Mrs. B. C. Combe, at convenor and her band of helpers, also to the artists who so kindly gave their services. I should also like to acknowledge with the gratitude of the club the many cash and other donations, some of which were anonymous.

KATE E. GAUDIN.

President.

SENT HIS BOY TO A TRAMP BOAT

To the Editor:—I have been given to understand that the government had a minimum wage in effect. If that is so why does the employment office send men out on jobs at $2 a day, working eight to twelve hours? Only this week the employment office phoned to different individuals telling them that they had a position waiting for them. They sent them to Ocean Point where an English tramp ship lay and five of her crew had deserted. This ship was leaving Canada for the United Kingdom and not expected to return. As a good citizen of Victoria, and the father of teen age boys, whom this office sent to this ship, I do not think that such an official is capable of looking after the interests of young men.

A FATHER.

NEARLY $100 FOR SOCIETY

To the Editor:—Through your column the executive of the Victoria Branch of the League of Nations Society in Canada would like to express their sincere thanks to all the citizens of Greater Victoria who, by contributions of various kinds, helped to make the garden fête recently held under our auspices a very successful affair.

In particular we wish to say how grateful we are to Mrs. J. W. Benning, who unhesitatingly placed her spacious grounds at our disposal, to the many individuals who donated articles to be sold, to those who gave of their time to converse and assist with the bridge party, games, stalls and afternoon tea, and finally to the general public who patronized the garden party in such a generous manner.

All of the above will be interested to learn that as a result of their donations or purchases, the funds of the local society were materially strengthened. Total receipts were $197.38 out of which must be taken approximately $50 for expenses incurred.

On behalf of the Victoria executive, JOHN GOUGH, Corresponding Secretary.

CHAIN STORE WAGES

To the Editor:—We request some of your space now to give prominence to a bit of truth which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has produced in refutation of allegations before the Price Spreads Commission.

The truth, as confirmed by the bureau in this year 1936, is as the Canadian Chain Store Association contended in 1934—that chain store wages were better than wages in the independent stores with which the chains have to compete. The bulletin to which we refer is entitled "Weekly Earnings of Employees in Merchandising and Service Establishments in Canada, 1935." The preface shows that the bureau thinks that its 1935 by-mail census of retail wages embraced 84 per cent of all the persons in Canada employed in retail establishments. The survey included 3,289 male persons employed full-time in independent grocery stores and 7,285 male persons employed full-time in chain food stores.

The figures show:

1. That the average wage of a person employed in a chain store is higher than the average wage of a person employed in an independent store.

2. That 61 per cent of the full-time male employees in independent stores receive less than $15 per week, whereas only 45 per cent of the full-time male employees of chain food stores receive less than $15 per week. Full-time delivery boys would be included in both types of stores.

3. Conversely, only 39 per cent of the employees of independent stores receive more than $15 per week, whereas 55 per cent of chain food store employees receive more than $15 per week.

4. In the higher wage brackets, the record of chain food stores as compared with independents reveals still further the inaccurate nature of the comparative evidence of certain witnesses before the Price Spreads Commission. Of full-time male employees of independent stores only 6.2 per cent received $25 per week or more. Contrast this with the official figures relating to chain food stores. It is found that not less than 22.9 per cent, or nearly one out of four, were paid $25 per week or more.

5. In no classification above $21 per week is the independent store employee as well paid as the chain food store employee. For instance, in the classification between $20 and $21 per week, there are only 1.4 per cent of independent employees, whereas 5.3 per cent of the chain store employees are in this group.

In 1934 nearly all of the newspapers in Canada gave prominence to testimony at Ottawa which attempted to prove the contrary. Since then, some politicians in various parts of Canada have deemed it expedient to attack chain stores on their wage record. That record at last is proved to be better than that of other merchants with whom the chain must compete.

At Ottawa the chain food stores were accused of giving bargains to their customers at the expense of their employees. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows that the chains, despite their low prices, have been paying better wages than the independent merchants have been paying. The declared attempt in some parts of Canada and the United States to ban chain stores out of existence is an effort to make the consumer bonus the independent merchant who is unwilling to make his own store as efficient as the chain. Hundreds of them have proved that this last can be done.

WAR VET'S AMAZING RECORD

From The Australian Press Bureau

William K. Bryant, who fought in five wars, has just died at Ipswich, Australia, aged ninety-seven. He was born in Queensland, in 1839. At the age of thirteen he signed on the Victory, which was then a ferry carrying ship under Admiral Wellesley. On the outbreak of the Crimean War he landed on the Peninsula with the naval brigade. He was present when the first fort on the Black Sea was taken, and he remembered well the bombardment of Sebastopol. At the time he was serving on the Lord Howe, a three-decker with 125 guns.

In 1885, Bryant rejoined the Victory, and in 1887 was sent out on a fifty-two gun frigate to the Indian Mutiny. He took part in the march to relieve Cawnpore and in the capture of Delhi. He returned to England only to find himself immediately sent out to the Chinese War in which he won the Victoria

INN SERVING MORE MEALS

Closing of Relief Camps Sends July Total Up

Sunshine Inn provided one meal daily throughout July—served between 3.30 and 4.30 p.m. each day including Sundays—and the number served was 2,064, averaging sixty-six daily, an increase of eleven meals a day over the previous month.

The closing of the relief camps has contributed to the increase, it is believed.

A loss of $8.81 on actual operation is shown for the month reported, the operating expenditure being $130.17 in cash, while the cash received by contributions was $121.36.

Cash contributions donated are gratefully acknowledged as follows: Miss M. Hall $2, P. Nation $10, anonymous $5, anonymous $35, J. A. Grant $5, "Bobbie" $5, Mrs. L. E. Pierce $5, "In memoriam" Fred Lansberg $5, P. W. Nolte & Co. $10, "M.N." $5, Mrs. Wemyss $5, anonymous $20, "X.Y.Z." $2, anonymous friend $25, R. N. King $10, gift box $5.56. Total, $121.36.

BALL LIGHTNING OBSERVED

Lincoln, Nebr.—A double display of ball lightning, a very rare phenomenon, was witnessed here recently by Mrs. F. H. Moore of this city. She was watching a rainstorm through a window of her home, when she saw three red globes of fire rolling and bouncing along the street. They struck an iron post and disappeared. "Mrs. Moore called her husband to the window," but he did not arrive in time to see the first display. The Moors, however, together witnessed a second discharge of three or four balls about a quarter of a minute later. This second set was also seen by two boys, Don and Dale Darnell. Prof. J. C. Jensen of Nebraska Wesleyan University has interviewed both the Moors and the Darnell boys, and is convinced of the essential accuracy of their observations.

Final Concert Is Presented

Scottish Band Heard in Last of Season's Programmes at Park

An audience which expressed its appreciation in no uncertain terms, and also expressed regret that the concert was the last of the current season, yesterday afternoon heard the programme presented by the 16th Canadian Scottish band in Beacon Hill Park, under the direction of Lieut. James M. Miller.

The programme was well arranged and included special selections, all of which were enjoyed. Playing these were Lieut. Miller, who rendered a trombone solo, Bandman Jones, who gave a piccolo solo, and Bandman Moscop, Miller and McKenzie, in a cornet trio.

Selections from the popular operetta, "The Student Prince," were received with enthusiasm. Loud applause also followed "Classica," a group of standard favorites.

At the close of the programme several persons from the audience expressed the hope Lieut. Miller would be able to arrange to have the concert continued in the park this summer.

Other numbers on the programme were: March, "Punjab"; waltz, "Nights of Gladness"; fantasia, "Cavalry Charge"; request, "The Glow Worm"; "Czardas"; "La Paloma" and "American Patrol."

Run Trains For Grouse Shooting

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 10.—Express trains for Scotland are running triplicate tonight for Wednesday's opening of the grouse shooting season.

The "Glorious 12th," to use a phrase beloved of the old-time reporter who also used to talk of the crack of the "trigger" being heard on the moor, will have a larger following this season than for many years, thanks to more money among the devotees of this highly expensive sport.

Severe weather and late nesting render the prospects only moderate. Mixed shooting parties nowadays are quite common. Twenty years ago the appearance of a feminine shot evoked silent prayers among the remainder of the company for their personal safety.

The body was recovered two hours later.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

THE FLYING MAN

Fra Bartholomeu Lourenco de Gusmao, Brazilian priest and scientist, in 1709, came upon an idea for a flying chariot. He wrote to the King of Portugal and got a pension of 600,000 reis to continue his researches. But, serious investigator, or charlatan as some believe he was, De Gusmao never got his idea beyond the paper stage.

For it was a strange craft that De Gusmao had envisioned. He called it "Passarola," for it was supposed to fly like a swallow. It was to be a paper kite fashioned like a bird, and with feather wings. Tubes were to guide the wind against the sails, and bellows were designed to work when there was no gale. Magnets were to pull on pieces of amber, and so lift the vessel in the air.

De Gusmao became known as the "flying man." He died in 1724, at the age of forty-one, and his queer invention died with him.

Brazil built a monument to De Gusmao, never-theless, and in 1929 issued a stamp showing this monument and one picturing the priest, both part of a series on famous Brazilian air-men.

Shorten Time For Treatment

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Three Chicago scientists believe that they have succeeded in decreasing materially the long period of treatment necessary for persons who have syphilis in its early stages. They further feel that their methods bring the eradication of the disease in its early stages one step nearer realization.

Dr. Clarence A. Neymann, Dr. Theodore K. Lawless and S. L. Osborne have merely combined the recognized fever and drug treatments of syphilis, and the results, to be reported in the forthcoming issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, have been highly satisfactory.

The average time consumed in this combined treatment is forty-two days. An average of five sessions of fever were given each patient and an average of five injections of neosphenamine were given during the treatment period.

A small amount of bismuth salicylate was also used. Fourteen cases of early syphilis were treated with hyperpyrexia; that is, the patients were given a high fever. Half of them simultaneously were given arsenamine and bismuth compounds.

The seven treated by fever therapy alone developed further signs of the disease. The seven given the combined treatment have shown no clinical signs of syphilis for periods ranging between five and eighteen months.

"This entire treatment presupposes an organized, expert medical and nursing staff trained in giving hyperpyrexia treatments and the hospitalization of the patient during twenty-four hours for each session of hyperpyrexia," the three medical scientists state.

No Widespread Polio Epidemic

Washington, Aug. 10.—No indications are seen by U.S. Public Health Service officials here that the infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) epidemic in Alabama and Tennessee will reach national proportions. Reports from other parts of the country show no unusual amount of the disease.

Federal health authorities are also encouraged by the fact that the Alabama-Tennessee outbreak is not so severe as the North Carolina epidemic of about the same time last year. Nor does it show any great tendency to spread.

Federal "H-fen" led by Dr. Charles Armstrong have gone into the affected areas in order to aid in the application of the new nose spray which it is hoped will prevent the disease. Developed by Dr. Armstrong and Dr. W. T. Harrison as the result of experimental work on monkeys, the alum-pyric acid nasal spray is receiving its first large-scale application in this epidemic.

In the hope of saving some of those who might otherwise fall victims, the nasal spray is being used without any attempt at making a controlled experiment. Physicians and health officers are administering the spray, which is quite harmless, to those who desire it and who can be treated with the facilities available.

Undoubtedly a study will be made later to determine whether any cases of poliomyelitis occur among those who are treated with the spray, but there is no systematic exclusion of some from the treatment in order to have a "normal" group in which the disease might have an unhampered chance to spread, as would be the case if the doctors were conducting a laboratory experiment.

U.S. Public Health Service officials are careful to state that the alum-pyric acid spray method is "based entirely upon animal experimentation" and "is not at present to be regarded as of proved value in the prevention of poliomyelitis in man."

Nevertheless, they are hopeful that it will prove effective in preventing the disease and that this epidemic may give some evidence to that effect.

In last year's North Carolina epidemic there was experimental use of vaccines designed to provide artificial immunity to the disease. In the time subsequent to that use, medical opinion has developed which has indicated that vaccines should not be used.

Laboratory Opened

Dunedin, Fla., Aug. 10.—A new laboratory for basic research in the biological and chemical problems of handling and processing citrus fruits and their products has just been opened here. It is to be known as the Florida Citrus Research Laboratory, and was founded by B. C. Skinner, a pioneer in the development of labor-saving equipment as applied in the citrus industry.

Dr. Rodney B. Harvey, for sixteen years professor of plant physiology at the University of Minnesota, has been placed in charge of the laboratory. Dr. Harvey developed the now widely used process of speeding fruit-ripening by means of gas treatment, and also a method of adding attractive color to the skins of oranges and other citrus fruits. With him are associated Dr. Longfield Smith, plant chemist, and J. J. Bristow, chemical engineer.

Largest Star Camera To Snap Milky Way

Wynnewood, Pa., Aug. 10.—A two and a half ton battery of three star cameras, the largest using plates two feet wide, has just been placed in operation at the private observatory of Dr. Gustavus Wynne Cook, located here. Largest camera battery of its kind in the world, Dr. Cook will use it to make a series of photographs of the entire Milky Way. After photographing all the Milky Way area that is within reach from here, he expects to move the equipment to South America or South Africa, so that regions of the sky which never rise in the Philadelphia area can be recorded.

The three cameras take pictures on plates 20x24 inches, 14x17 inches and 8x10 inches. They are equipped with lenses, 8 1/2, 5 and 4 inches in diameter, of a type invented by Dr. Frank E. Ross of the University of Chicago's Yerkes Observatory. There is a guiding telescope with 4-inch lens by means of which the photographer can keep the camera accurately pointed at a selected part of the sky. He can also correct any errors in the running of the electric motor which turns it once daily from east to west to compensate for the earth's rotation. The instrument was built by J. W. Fecker of Pittsburgh.

Black Clothes Absorb Heat

Washington, Aug. 10.—The smart new fashion of black clothing for summer wear has no support from the scientists who understand problems of heat. It might do for evening wear, but don't don a black dress and go out in the sun if you want maximum comfort. Rough black surfaces are the best absorbers of heat known to science.

Smooth, bright surfaces reflect or turn away the heat. Science therefore does give support to these new, bright helmets the boys are wearing. If you don't believe it, here is a laboratory test you can easily try for yourself. Take two bright new tin cans with covers and tear off the labels. Fill both with cold water and set them out in the sun, but first rub lamp black on one of them. Later take the temperature in the two cans. The water in the blackened can will be much warmer than that in the shiny one.

Another warning about summer clothing from scientists. It is not the fabric that is loosely woven with wide air spaces between fibers that is the coolest. Air makes a good insulator for holding the heat of the body in. Wool clothing and furs are warm because the fibers are small and hold plenty of air between them. Linen is a cool fabric because the fibers are large and it has few air spaces.

Small Animals Resist Drought

Washington, Aug. 10.—Small wild animals in the drought area are suffering less than livestock, the United States Biological Survey informed Science Service. Such lesser native creatures as prairie dogs, rabbits, ground squirrels, and the owls, hawks and snakes that prey upon them, manage to pick up a living when pasture has failed for the bigger beasts. It is a case of the biological meek inheriting the earth.

Biological Survey scientists discount stories of wholesale migrations of jackrabbits from South Dakota into Nebraska. Migrations have occurred from time to time, but they are always more or less local affairs, it was explained. Jackrabbits were never mass migrants like their old-time bigger neighbors, the bison.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEWS

Canadian Press
Toronto, Aug. 10.—Trading weather was a bit foggy for the market operators in the last week and, as usual when the signs are not clear, they lightened their holdings at a sacrifice of some of their paper profits in the gold issues. The shading of prices was accompanied by a moderate tapering off of volume.

Both the industrial share list and the gold group of the mining section chalked up losses in four and gains in one of the five sessions since the end of July. Monday was a holiday on the Toronto market. Base metal shares and the silvers also worked narrowly lower, but there was enough improvement in the junior issues to lift the Toronto Exchange miscellaneous index about a third of a point.

In brokerage circles the setback in the mines was regarded as a normal sequence to the advance achieved in July. In both the senior and the secondary golds the week witnessed no losses greater than 25 cents except in O'Brien, where a decline of $1.10 in the period appeared reasonable in view of the gain of $2.80 in the previous week.

Base metal stocks displayed improvement late in the week after showing heaviness in the earlier sessions. Noranda, off $1.50, registered the only important decline. In the silvers, Nipissing was off 10 cents and Castie & White Eldorado marked time. Action in the oils continued sluggish. Of the interlisted leaders on the industrial share section only International Nickel, C.P.R., Imperial Oil and International Petroleum were gainers in the period, each firming fractions.

Food strength stocks gave evidence of strength during the week. Loblaw B set a new high for the year at $19. Some of the power stocks advanced but Montreal Power declined $1.

Negro Confesses To Girl Slaying

Associated Press
Asheville, N.S., Aug. 10.—Solution of the killing of eighteen-year-old Helen Clevenger, whose pyjama-clad body was found stabbed and shot to death in her Battery Park Hotel room last month, was announced yesterday by Sheriff Laurence Brown.

Brown said a negro hall boy, Martin Moore, had confessed and renounced the crime.

Moore was quoted by the sheriff as saying he was bent on robbery when he entered the New York university co-ed's room after finding two other doors on the same floor locked.

The girl, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Clevenger of Staten Island, N.Y., had been vacationing here.

The negro formally was charged with murder, Sheriff Brown said.

A CHILD ABSORBS ATTITUDES AND PREJUDICES FROM PARENT'S BEHAVIOR

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

Acts and gestures of parents are a much more effective education than words. Yet parents continue to "tell" a child how to act and think, rather than use the slower method of showing him by example.

The folly of the first method shows in its results. The mother whose nose wrinkles disgustingly at the very thought of hearty food inspires in her lean child no special appetite for the wholesome repast she conscientiously puts before her.

WATCH YOUR TONGUE!

The mother may pay high prices for music lessons, but she thwarts the appreciation of good music she is at such pains to build up when she says, "Turn off that noise!" at the first hint of a symphony concert.

A mother who makes derogatory remarks about religious other than her own, or about the racial characteristics of neighbors or friends, poisons a child's mind against them, no matter how persistently she tells her child to be nice to everyone, no matter what he is or what he thinks. In fact, her very assumption of the right to be nice to some other individual gives the child a most accurate measuring rod of her own supposed superiority.

PARENT POINTS THE WAY

All along the way the parent's everyday acts guide the child's thinking while the words, which give the lie to the acts, fall on unheeding ears. No one ever talks a child into lifelong prejudices; they are acquired by those subtle gestures, those unwitting acts which cast the child's ideas in unchanging molds.

Whether she wishes or not, the parent interprets life for the child, not by her consciously generous, unselfish or tolerant words, but by the way she unwittingly responds to everyday events and people.

Our leaflet, "Helping the Child to be Unselfish," may be had for a self-addressed stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Elderd of the Your Baby and Mine department of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: "Parents May Help the Timid Child by Calling Attention to His Assets."

Sidney Girl Is Pretty Bride

Miss Ivy May Hill Wed Saturday To Henry M. Rankin

Amid a profusion of beautiful summer flowers, the wedding took place Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at Ivy May, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Hill, Sixty Street, Sidney, to Henry McGill Rankin, younger son of Mrs. A. Rankin and the late Archibald Rankin of Courtenay, B.C. Mr. Hopkins of Victoria officiating.

The bride entered the hall with her father, and wore a gown of ivory satin, made on simple lines with lace yoke, the full sleeves gathered tightly at the elbow and fitting closely to the wrists. Her veil of embroidered net was confined to her head with a bandeau of orange blossoms. Cerise gladioli composed her bouquet.

There were three attendants. Mrs. G. Bowcott, sister of the bride, as matron of honor. Miss Agnes Craig and Miss Winnie Thornley acted as bridesmaids. Mrs. Bowcott chose green point d'esprit, ruffled from waist to hem, with which was worn a short coat of ruffles and a large white hat, and carried a sheaf of yellow gladioli. Miss Craig and Miss Thornley wore yellow and mauve net dresses respectively, with vertical frills from knee to hem, with capes of similar frills and bandeaux of flowers in their hair. Miss Craig carried mauve gladioli and Miss Thornley's pink gladioli.

Supporting the bridegroom was Mr. David Stewart of Victoria, while acting as ushers were Mr. Stewart Hill, brother of the bride and Mr. Gordon Bowcott. Miss Bella Craig played the wedding music and accompanied Miss Ora Jealous of Victoria, who sang during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love."

Pink and mauve streamers fell from the chandeliers to the four corners, while silver vases of pink and mauve sweet peas complemented the decorations.

During the reception a quartette composed of the Misses M. and I. Bowcott, Mr. D. Stewart and Mr. A. McKelvie, sang songs. Miss Jealous pleased the guests.

Mr. G. Stewart and Mrs. J. Mathews poured tea, and assisting in serving were the Misses Lillian Woods, Gladys and Margaret Morrey, Grace McKerracher, Mary Stewart, Bella Craig, Mary Taylor and Helen Keyworth.

Miracles Attributed To Dead Indian Girl

Rome Considers Beatification of "Lily of the Mohawks," Who Died at Lachine in 1680

Vatican City, Aug. 10.—The long process which may create in Kateri Tekawitha, Mohawk Indian girl who died 250 years ago, the first native North American saint, has been initiated before the congregation of rites.

The congregation now is examining the vast collection of documents supporting her cause. Soon the claims for beatification will be subjected to rigorous survey by the promoter of the faith, Monsignor Salvatore Matucci, whose duty it is to advance every conceivable argument why the cause should be dismissed. An attorney for the promoters will defend the claims.

"MIRACLE" CURES

Scores of accounts of "extraordinary cures" achieved through the intercession of the Indian girl have been submitted for possible adjudication as miracles.

One of the most important of these is that of John Szymanski, Fordham University football player, who was paralyzed after being injured in a game with Bucknell in 1931.

Szymanski, a Polish youth, relates the story of his escape from death and complete recovery from paralysis while his fellow students were making a novena to Kateri on the university campus.

The Pope has taken an especial interest in the cause because of his desire to see created a native United States saint.

Kateri, known as the "Lily of the Mohawks," was born in 1656 in Glen, Montgomery County, New York, and orphaned at the age of four.

Despite opposition of relatives, Kateri determined to become a Christian and was baptized Easter Sunday 1678.

From the time she was eleven Kateri steadfastly had resisted the marriage schemes her relatives concocted. For this she was deprived of food, taunted by licentious young braves and pelted with mud by children.

FLED TO CANADA

After a year of such torture Kateri was aided by missionaries to flee to a Christian Indian village across the Canadian border near the Lachine rapids.

There, when she reached the age of twenty-three, Kateri took a step unprecedented among her people. She made a vow of virginity. Religious fervor eventually inspired her to excruciating self-torture. She flailed her body with the lash, branded herself with hot iron, walked barefoot in the snow, placed hot embers between her toes.

Missionaries intervened and persuaded her to moderate these manifestations of devotion which her frail constitution little could endure. Within a year she became seriously ill and died, April 17, 1680.

Native and white Christians began praying at her grave almost immediately. Stories of remarkable cures multiplied until in 1884 a conference of United States bishops at Baltimore proposed Kateri's beatification. In 1931 the move assumed concrete form with the appointment of a postulator to advance her cause.

BONES IN QUEBEC

Montreal, Aug. 10 (Canadian Press).—Bones of Kateri Tekawitha, Mohawk Indian maid dead 250 years and now mentioned for beatification by the congregation of rites at Vatican City, are being kept in the Church of St. Francis Xavier Mission at Caughnawaga, an Indian reserve near Montreal.

Hundreds of United States tourists pay daily visits during the summer months and pray before the relics, unearthed from the Indian girl's grave at the foot of Lachine Rapids in 1915.

Pyjamas For Dinner Wear

Paris "Dolls" Them Up With Sequins; Wasp Waist

New York, Aug. 10.—Pyjamas may be worn to dinner this fall, and just to show how slinky they can be, one designer has created a pair made of black sequins.

A full-length transparent cape bordered in silver and trimmed with bands of scarlet sequins goes with this outfit guaranteed to make a dinner party "different."

Dinner pyjamas also are being shown in all shades of velvet and satin, and it is chic to combine colors—for example, pale blue satin jacket and slacks, and satin blouse of eggplant color.

Both lounging and dinner pyjamas for fall have trousers cut like slacks. Some velvet slacks have tucked-in blouses of jersey or contrasting color flannel.

A dinner outfit may have a little bolero jacket, while boudoir pyjamas sometimes have a "smoking jacket," copied from men's attire.

Paris, Aug. 10.—Wasp waists accentuated by full top sleeves and skirts measuring five to six yards at the hem featured the latest Paris style collections today.

Tiny beads attained importance as they were used to border tunics of evening dresses and make designs on day dresses and woollens.

Metal laces were fashioned into scarfs, belts and petticoats for day frocks. One green and one purple lame glove were shown with a Lama evening dress having a green bodice and a purple skirt.

Women of the Moose—The business meeting of Victoria Chapter No. 25 will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in K. of P. Hall, 1415 Broad Street. A good attendance is asked, as discussion on reports of halls will take place, also plans for social activities for this month as drawn at meeting of committee last week, members are reminded to bring refreshments.

THROAT AND CHIN DEFECTS GIVE WAY TO EXERCISES

By ALICIA HART

The woman who plans and carries out her own complexion treatments should avoid routines that involve slapping and rubbing. Both tend to break down delicate tissues. If a reliable, experienced facial expert massages your face, that is one thing; to try to go through these operations at home is quite a different matter.

If you use a mask now and then be sure to cleanse your skin carefully before you smooth the mask on face and throat. If your skin is even slightly inclined to be dry, apply cream after you have rinsed off the mask.

If you have a double chin, it is far better to reduce it with exercises than with massage. At night, after you have cleaned your face and throat smooth on a bit of rice cream. Then stand erect, inhale deeply, letting your head fall forward on your chest. The muscles should be absolutely relaxed. Exhale slowly. Leaving your head in the downward position, inhale and, at the same time, stiffen every muscle of the neck. Slowly raise your head and let it drop backward as far as possible. Exhale. Bring your head upright, then repeat from the beginning.

Here is another good exercise for a flabby throat or a double chin: Make muscles of the throat very tense, inhale and bend the head sideways to the left, then breathe out. Come back to the starting position. Inhale again and bend head to the right as far as it will go. Repeat each movement five times.

The perfect exercise for head and neck posture can be done easily several times a day. Just put a heavy book flat on top of your head, then walk around the room. If you are standing correctly, the book will stay on your head.

DON'T TAKE SUBJECT OF TABLE MANNERS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Table manners simply have to be taught early if they are to endure. Like all other conventional behavior, by which we judge the culture of the individual, little lessons of deportment at meals must be ingrained until they are as natural as breathing.

"You can't let Johnny wolf his dinner regularly and then expect him to take a correspondence course in how to behave at the Joneses."

Says mother, "Now, Johnny, we are going to stop at the Joneses for lunch on our trip tomorrow. I want you to sit quietly, not talk, hold your fork right, be careful not to spill your water, and break your bread in small pieces before you eat it. Keep your napkin on your knee, and do not gurgie into your glass or stuff your mouth so full you can not chew. The Jones children are very well brought up and I want them to see that we know as much about manners as they do. Now remember."

JOHNNY FORGETS

And next day, in spite of all her admonition, small John picks this admonition, small John picks this admonition to act like two little pigs instead of only one. He yells that he wants some more of "that stuff." Scoops up the food on his plate like a prospector feverishly digging for nuggets and drinks his fruited cold tea from the table by tilting his glass and lowering his mouth to its level.

"Oh, how can he? How dare he?" gasps his embarrassed mother as she glares over at him and makes covert signs to him to behave. But Johnny, irritated at being interrupted in his gargantuan feast, is almost certain to scowl and stare at her in perplexity and blurt out "What are you makin' all those signs for, Mom? I ain't doin' anything."

And when they leave she will probably weep or paddle him and tell him he has disgraced her forever. Which he has, but according to his lights and daily habits, as innocently as a puppy lapping its milk. Johnny can not learn by precept, not over night anyway. It takes daily correcting, suggestion and the example of others at the table to show him how a gentleman eats.

SHOULD LEARN EARLY

The proper use of forks for certain things and spoons for others are important as soon as the child can hold them. How to lift a glass carefully, sip or drink quietly and then set it down again, watching where he puts it, must be repeated over and over. The use of butter knives is next, so that he can spread his own bread, broken in pieces. At home his "pieces" can be spread for him, but as he has to learn sometime it saves trouble. To eat slowly and chew well is not only good manners but necessary to health. The correct use of the napkin is to lay it across the knee. He learns thereby to use care about spotting his clothes.

The important thing is to coach him, not when some emergency arises, but constantly, so that table deportment becomes natural. Be sure he holds his fork correctly because many a good job has been lost, or promotion withheld, when the boss asked Jim or Joe out to lunch and saw him seize his fork like a dagger all ready for its Caesar. Give the children a chance. They will need it.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS EMBARRASSED, blushing and pretty, tries not to be jealous of the other girls in her crowd at Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb. SYLVIA REVER, richest girl in town, dislikes Boots and fails to invite her to a big party at the Yacht Club. Boots accepts a last-minute invitation from Mrs. WATERMAN, socially prominent, to a dinner at the club that same night.

Quite innocently, Boots is thrown into an embarrassing situation by HARDY WHITEHORE, one of Sylvia's guests, who had been drinking. He tries to induce Boots to go sailing with him and, when she runs away, goes off in a boat alone and falls overboard. His rescue causes considerable excitement and Sylvia is furious. She resolves to punish Boots and maliciously reveals the story in the Woman's Club, asks Boots to resign from the Juniors.

Hardy calls to apologize and Boots is coldly responsive.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

Boots's tale-a-tale with Hardy was interrupted by the arrival of the Beach Club swimming instructor, RUS LUND. Hatless, looking by comparison to Hardy's leanness and trimness rather a "roughneck" that Patty had dubbed him, he stood there grinning at her.

"You forgot something," Boots stared at him. Then she smiled. He was holding her vanity case out to her, a frivolous affair of fine tortoise shell, flat and thin. She must have left it in the car when he drove her home.

"Oh, yes. Thanks a lot." She began rather haltingly to make the necessary introductions. "Mr. Whitmore . . . Mr. Lund . . ."

Hardy bowed a trace too stiffly and said they knew each other. RUS's duck trousers were rather bedraggled looking. The virile white sweater, in contrast to Hardy's beautifully

He had been relieved, a few moments before, when Boots had assured him he had nothing to do with any discomfort she might be suffering at the hands of the good ladies he casually dubbed "the village witches." Every woman over thirty was a witch to this arrogant, handsome young man. But now he wasn't sure he wanted to have his kind offer so casually dismissed. If Isabel was right Boots was "in bad" with the witches. He knew the town; it would make her suffer.

Selfish as he was, Hardy was decent enough underneath to feel a slight qualm at the prospect. He had been boiled as an owl the other night, Isabel had assured him, Sylvia had ridden him badly when he had made her and he'd still had the hangover. He hadn't been very nice to Sylvia. He had high-tailed her all over the place. Sure, Sylvia was one but she mustn't act as though she owned him. He couldn't stand that. Nothing burned him up so much as the inevitable feminine possessiveness. He shied at the least hint of it and Sylvia had made a fatal error in showing her hand.

He therefore turned on Boots now his most devastating smile. Older women than she had been known to be stirred by it, and Boots had been hurt and baffled all day. Small wonder she succumbed to the charm he managed to inject into his agreeable voice.

"Be a sweet thing and prove you're not mad at me. Come out tonight. We'll go places. Dance."

Well, why not? She had told herself, nothing to lose and everything to gain. Her father wouldn't object. All the young men in Larchmont looked pretty much alike to him. "All right," she said casually. She putting his foot on the brake quite suddenly at a red light, to imagine this girl in crinolines with a rose tucked into a cluster of curls at her throat.

"I must be getting screwy," he told himself with disgust.

They were out on the country road now, the motor running smoothly and silently and the scent of newly-cut grass borne to their nostrils like perfume. Past a hedge of dew-drenched hollyhocks the car glided and the heavenly scent was borne to both young people simultaneously. The girl caught her breath in sheer delight and the boy smiled to himself secretly, as some far-off childhood memory touched him.

"Honey-suckle! Ah, don't you just love that?" breathed the girl, forgetting to be cynical, forgetting her pose of disillusionment and sophistication.

"That what it is? I could go for that," said the young man briefly. The night was cool under the stars. Trees were black shapes against the sky and everywhere in hedges were blurred patches of roses, startling in the light thrown on them from the car's headlights. There was some kind of unharmed magic in the air. Both felt it, forgetting for the moment their poses and their chosen roles of worldlings. Boots put her problems of the day away from her, feeling only that it was good to be alive and young and strong, with this tide of sheer unreasoning happiness flowing in her veins.

"Well, where do we go from here?" They were at a crossroads now, the blinker flickering on and off in silent warning. Hardy drove "like a streak." Boots said; and with this rushing through the scented night was part of the pleasant dream life that was tonight. It had nothing at all to do with tailored flannels, looked utterly hopeless.

"You forgot something," Russ said. He held out the vanity case.

"Well, I'll be seeing you. Thought you might want the gadget . . ."

Boots came out of her trance to thank him again, this time too profusely, because she felt sorry for him and hated to see him snubbed. Who was Hardy—what did he think he was—to go high hat on her all of a sudden?

Her momentary sense of embarrassment faded in the face of Hardy's cool arrogance. What if he did assume, quite without warrant, that the Beach Club guard was unduly friendly to her? It was none of his business. If she were going to be one of Larchmont's girl outlaws she might as well play the role to the limit.

As Russ's old car, parked a few doors down the street, chugged spasmodically out of sight she said coolly, "He's a grand person, really," with an enthusiasm she was far from feeling. She knew little or nothing about the squarely-built, big-shouldered young man with the shock of unruly hair, except that he obviously admired her. A few moments ago she had been considering the possibilities of turning Hardy's abject politeness to good account. She had a golden opportunity. Why not use it? But all at once the thought sickened her. No, she wouldn't cry on his shoulder and tell him she was a big, bad man who might save her from all the village disfavor. She wouldn't either adopt a devil-may-care attitude which often went over famously with the boys.

The golden youth beside her looked at her in puzzlement. What had gone wrong with the interview? He was accustomed to fluttering interest. He would have sworn this little thing would be grateful for any crumbs of flattery he might toss her way. But somehow she wasn't playing up. He felt it had been damned decent of him to come around in the first place. Why, he hardly knew the girl although he had always thought her flyaway yellow hair and big brown eyes a delectable combination. She could be a knockout, he told himself solemnly, with the right clothes and make-up. Of course she was one of the young crowd. Why, he was two years older. That made a lot of difference. She had spirit though. She threw up her head like a young filly and he liked that husky voice of hers. It had a virile undertone to it. You could do something with this girl. . . .

What did the mean by smiling that way at old Redneck from the club? Something ought to be done about it. He wasn't her class.

Thus Hardy's thoughts . . .

had a "sort of date" with Johnny but that could be broken easily. It would be a triumph to be seen going places with Hardy and as long as the Mrs. Fernelle of the world had turned thumbs down on her she might as well have some fun out of the situation.

Hardy went away a bit surprised at himself, if the truth be told, at the way things had fallen out. He hadn't in the least intended to take this girl places, he grumbled. He had meant to do the graceful thing, say he was sorry for getting her mixed up in something awkward which hadn't been her fault. But Redneck's arrival had stirred something primitive and jealous in him. It would be amusing, Hardy reflected, driving away in a cloud of dust, to show the town what a queen this yellow haired girl could be. Maybe this was how Svengali had felt about Trixie. . . .

When Boots appeared in the doorway some hours later, immaculate in sleeveless white silk jacket worn over a white undergarment, he suspected that she had washed dishes and wrung out her towels only a short time before. She was cool, scented, self-possessed.

"Hi!"

She lifted her slim hand and let it fall in the greeting.

Hardy gave her an approving glance. "Good girl. Thought you might change your mind."

She widened her eyes. "Oh, why?"

"Thought the town fathers might be writing you letters about my reputation."

She smiled a far-away smile. "Oh, I guess it isn't as bad as all that." Hardy was frankly nettled. At twenty-one he was rather proud of being known as the bad boy of Larchmont. He had always been able to slide gracefully out of difficulties. His money, his father's position, his own undoubted charm had something to do with this. But he wanted this girl to understand that usually he was regarded as rather dangerous medicine. She was only a kid in his estimation. It was irritating to feel he was not appreciated.

But when she settled into the seat at his side he forgot to be annoyed. Her profile was exquisite—classic he decided, and yet the classic outline was softened and sweetened, altogether unlike the faces of Grecian maidens on old coins. There was something flowerlike about her, something untouched and virginal and remote, in spite of the fact that she talked the glib language of the day and in almost every respect conformed to the rules of the younger set. It wouldn't be hard, thought Hardy, carping old women and resignations from clubs and schoolmates who hated one and were ready to do one harm if they could.

"Oh, the Barn, I guess," said the girl languidly, leaning back and hugging her brief over her shoulders. She had never been to the Barn, but Hardy wasn't to know that. Probably he would demur, anyhow. She didn't really expect him to accept her suggestion. It was a touch of bravado.

Hardy frowned to himself. The mood induced by the scent of honey-suckle was shattered. Ordinarily he liked the Barn, its rowdy music, its rowdy music, its rowdy music. Well, he'd been thinking this girl was different, had he? He'd been wrong. If she wanted to go to the Barn, all right. He had been a fool. She was just like all the others.

Quake Recorder Goes to Museum

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The first earthquake recorder in the United States, placed in service at Lick Observatory at the University of California in 1886, will soon go on display at the museum of the Franklin Institute here.

The Lick Observatory instrument was one of the few in California at the time of the disastrous quake in San Francisco on April 18, 1906. The observatory is only forty-five miles away from San Francisco. The original record of this severe and damaging shock is still preserved and shows that while the vibrations threw the recording mechanism off the tracing paper, the apparatus functioned unharmed.

The instrument is known as an Ewing three-component seismograph. It was the invention of Prof. J. A. Ewing of Dundee, Scotland, and the first description was published in Nature, a leading British scientific journal, on August 12, 1886. Two heavy weights, mounted to swing like a gate, are connected by levers to pointed arms which rest on a glass disk twenty-four inches in diameter which has been covered with soot. One weight is free to swing in an east and west direction, the other north and south. When the earth shakes under the instrument, the entire machine moves, but the weights and the instrument make the pointed lever move back and forth over the disk, which is slowly rotating, like a phonograph turntable. In this way, successive swings of the lever do not obliterate the others. Another weight, balanced on the end of a spring, and free to swing up and down, records in a similar way the vertical movement of the ground.

Mother Love Key to "Missing" Boy Riddle

A mother's yearning for her little son proved to have been the factor behind the mysterious disappearance from school in Berkeley, Calif., of Henry Grant Field, four, grandson-nameake of the rich Shenandoah, Ia., seedman and radio station operator, shown at left. Safe and happy in his little wagon, the boy is shown at right in Ames, Ia., with his baby sister, Phyllis Jane, and Mrs. Philip Field, who is said to have spirited the lad away from California. Though they have been on friendly terms, Mrs. Field, a summer student at Iowa State College, and her husband, dean of business administration at Head College, Oakland, have been estranged for more than a year. The father would not reveal whether he would go to court for custody of his son.

CITY WORKERS ENJOY PICNIC

Good List of Sports Feature of Civic Federation Event at Goldstream

In the pleasant surroundings of Goldstream Park, members of the Civic Employees' Federation, their families and friends on Saturday gathered for their annual picnic, enjoying the outing in the attractive resort and participating in a round of well-contested sports.

During the day, Mayor David Leeming, who attended with several of the aldermen, addressed the gathering. He explained to them the inability of the City Council to restore civic salaries owing to the failure of the city to secure funds to make such a restoration. In some detail he outlined the city's financial position and spoke of possible aid which might be given at the fall session of the provincial legislature.

Sergeant A. Bishop, president of the association, thanked the mayor for his remarks, telling the gathering his worship was a real friend of the wage-earner.

In a special golf competition played during the morning at Colwood, Sam McKenzie, with a net 72, won first honors. Bob Pouls was second with 74, Alec Briggs, Bob Bindle and Tom Harris tied for third place with 77s. Reg Lanning gained the consolation award with a net 130.

Shirley Temple Heading Home

Little Star Makes Final Gesture to Children as Car Leaves for Qualicum

With a final gesture of courtesy to the children of Victoria, Shirley Temple left the city yesterday morning after spending five days here with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Temple, and her personal representative and "big brother," W. M. Bishop.

The gesture came as the big black car bore the little star down the driveway of the Empress Hotel shortly before 11 o'clock. There was a crowd of little boys and girls waiting where the drive ends at the corner of Government and Belleville Streets to cheer the little star. Shirley had the car stopped, and talked for five minutes with the children.

AT QUALICUM
The Temples drove up to Qualicum yesterday, arriving there in the early afternoon. They returned to Nanaimo in the evening, and went across to Vancouver by the ferry. This morning they are heading south for Hollywood and home.

Before they left, Mr. and Mrs. Temple paid tribute to the kind treatment they and Shirley had received in Victoria, and especially to the co-operation of police and other departments.

Everywhere they went here crowds followed them. They had come to this city with its reputation for quietness in the half-hope of escaping from those crowds, for this was purely a holiday trip, but they were hardly surprised when they found it impossible to go into a store without having to have police clear a way out for them through hundreds of people who thronged to see Shirley.

They consider their visit here a great success, and they are planning to return here on a holiday some other year.

NOT INDIAN CHIEF
Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 10.—Shirley Temple, who won't become an Indian chief after all, packed her doll

“Jimmy” and her toy striped tiger into her car today and headed with her mother and father back into the United States, ending a brief visit to Canada's Pacific Coast.

Shirley was too sleepy when she arrived here last night to talk very much, but contented herself with throwing kisses to the people who watched her being carried on her father's shoulder to her hotel room and receiving a bouquet from Pat McGee, the mayor's young daughter.

Shirley's representative, W. M. Bishop, said the child star would not have time to be given the head-dress of an Indian chieftain among the ritual which had been planned. The Temples plan to visit relatives in San Francisco en route to Hollywood.

The Cathedral of Nuestra Señora del Pilar, above, may again come under fire as Spanish government forces close in on Zaragoza (Saragossa). Alberta Fires Out of Control
Men Rushed to Scene of Blazes as Wind Fans Flames
Canadian Press
Calgary, Aug. 10.—Forest fires in southwestern Alberta swept out of control last night as a strong southwest wind sent embers flying into new stands of timber-dry trees. An appeal for 185 more men was sent out from forestry headquarters.

Although no new reports had been received on the fires near Castle River or the one near Banff, fifty men were sent to the Kananaskis Valley, about thirty-five miles east of Banff, to aid in fighting the fire on the banks of Calate Creek. Latest reports said the blaze was nearing Boundary Cabin on the boundary of Banff National Park.

A new outbreak was reported in the upper Elk River valley north of the Crow's Nest Pass. Its extent was unknown.

New men were also rushed to the ridge between the Highwood River and Sheep Creek, forty-five miles south of Calgary, where a fire was raging out of control. This blaze was said to be burning in settlements near the "E. P." ranch owned by King Edward.

Noses twitched in Calgary as smoke from a fire twelve miles east of Canmore and ten miles south of the Banff Highway was carried to the city. The fire was reported to be spreading rapidly.

Ray Mangrum Captures First Money in Oregon Open Golf

Pittsburgh Pro Ten Under Par With 278 Score

Has Rounds of 71-70 on Final Day at Portland; Horton Smith Gets Dodo

Byron Nelson Is Biggest Winner

Portland, Ore., Aug. 10.—Summer's golden golf trail through the west ended here today with a slender Pittsburgh professional, Ray Mangrum, who was an also-ran at St. Paul, Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, a stretch winner of the $1,200 first prize in the $5,000 Oregon open tournament.

The leader in a par-shattering pace which was so hot that the first eight money places went to professionals who shot consecutive rounds of par or better in the 72-hole test, Mangrum put on a nine-hole finish for a final score of 70-71-70-278, ten under perfect figures.

Tied at 63 holes with Horton Smith, Chicago, and Al Zimmermann, Portland, Mangrum stood off a burst of birdies on all sides by getting a 34, two under par, on the last nine. Smith, a bit dizzy from being an ace, even though his fourth in his golfing career, on the sixty-third after taking a terrible six on the par four sixty-second, failed to recover for better than a 37 on the last nine, while Zimmermann, elated by a spectacular 33 on the first nine of the last eighteen, could do no better than one birdie coming home for a 35.

Zimmermann finishing in a tie for second and third places with Neil Christian, Yakima, Wash., who blazed home with a 69, divided $1,300 with Christian, while Smith's ace was worth $300 and sixth place. The hole-in-one was made at the 130-yard ninth with a seven-iron, the ball hitting fifteen feet in front of the pin, and sending a big glory into hysteresis.

Zimmermann put together rounds of 71-69-71-279, while Christian collected 68-71-71-279. Fourth and fifth places and prize money of $408 each went to Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, and Charles Sheppard, Castlewood, Calif., tied at 280.

Tony Manero, U.S. open champion, gave a big gallery an idea of a title-bearer's golf by topping with a 69, while Smith's ace was worth $300 and sixth place. The hole-in-one was made at the 130-yard ninth with a seven-iron, the ball hitting fifteen feet in front of the pin, and sending a big glory into hysteresis.

Others who topped $1,000 were Horton Smith, $1,372; Al Zimmermann, $1,250; Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee, Okla., $1,110; Manero, $1,078; and Charles Sheppard, $1,068. Little former king of the amateurs, got $308.67 for his efforts.

Max Schmeling Arrives in U.S.

Lakehurst, N.J., Aug. 10.—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion from Germany, returned to the United States aboard the Zepplin Hindenburg Saturday to prepare for his fifteen-round bout with Jimmy Braddock, current holder of the title, in September.

U.S. WINS OLYMPIC RELAYS AND JAPANESE TAKES MARATHON

The Dutch squad in this event also came a cropper, dropping the baton near the finishing wire. They were lifted from third place as a result, and the German team moved into that position behind the Italians, who finished fifteen metres behind the United States winners.

Jeane Owens, triple winner in the broad jump, 100 and 200-metre sprints, sent the American team off with a two-metre lead. Ralph Metcalfe added four more. Roy Draper safeguarded them and Frank Wyckoff added another nine by running away from Tullio Gonnelli, Italy.

The German girl's relay team, which lowered the record of 47 seconds to 46.4 in Saturday's trials, shocked the vast throng into silence when they fumbled the baton on the last exchange and put themselves out of the running with victory in their grasp.

The American team, anchored by Helen Stephens, rushed on to victory, followed by the British and Canadian teams in that order. The Canadian girls were closed in 47.8 seconds, compared with the victors' time of 46.9, which saved 1-10 of a second from the listed record for the games.

The Canadian team was composed of Dot Brookshaw, Hilian Cameron, Jeane Owens, Dolores Toronto, and Allen Menger, Halifax.

Owens, including his part in the sprint relay, became the first American to collect four gold medals since A. E. Kraenzlein did it in 1900.

The only other event of the concluding day, the women's 100-metre dash, was won by Igaia Csak, of Hungary, in a jump-off after a three-way tie developed for first place. Miss Csak, with Dorothy Odum, England, and Germany's Elfriede Kaun, tied at 1.60 metres (five feet three inches) in the regular competition.

The Hungarian girl then leaped 5 feet 25-32 inches to take the championship, with Miss Odum beating out the fraulein for second place.

Margaret Ball, Vancouver, was a disappointment in this event. Although the tall, slender Canadian had recorded 5 feet 3 inches at home, she failed to clear five feet here and did not reach the finals.

LAND BIG HAULS AT BRENTWOOD

Over 100 pounds of fish came ashore in one of Bob Stacey's boats yesterday when H. H. Shandley and a party of friends went up their day's angling at Brentwood.

The party landed six springs, one weighing twenty-three pounds, another twenty pounds and four tipping the beam at fifteen.

Mrs. G. S. Smith, 2079 Crescent Road, made a fine catch over the week-end in the form of a twenty and a half pound, a sixteen pound, a ten pound and three small spring salmon while fishing between Bamber and Whittaker's point.

Among other catches yesterday at Brentwood were a thirty pounder hooked and landed by Norman McMillan, and a twenty-pound spring taken by Jack Caddell.

Death Rides at Wheel

Cheers rang in the ears of Helle Nice, famous French woman race driver, as she guided her auto down the straightway at Sao Paulo, Brazil. Suddenly she lost control of the speeding car. This remarkable picture was taken at the instant of disaster. Miss Nice, flung from her seat, hurtles through the air (centre). Her racer, travelling at 100 miles an hour, dives toward the spectators. Six were killed and scores injured by the juggernaut.

European Swimmers Dominate Olympics

Japanese Establish New Record in 800-metre Relay Trials; Canadians Qualify For Final; Hungarian Springs Upset By Winning Men's 100 Metres

Berlin, Aug. 10.—A Japanese quartette set a new Olympic record of 8 minutes 55.1 seconds in the 800-metre relay swimming trials today after a Canadian team had qualified for tomorrow's final by covering the row in 9:10.

The Canadian team—Bob Pirie, Toronto; Munroe Bourne, Montreal; Bobby Hooper, Vancouver, and Bob Hamerton, Winnipeg—finished second to the French winners of the first heat. The wearers of France's great crawled the route in 9:21.7. A Hungarian girl then leaped 5 feet 25-32 inches to take the championship, with Miss Odum beating out the fraulein for second place.

Rita Mastenbrook, Holland's brilliant star, captured the women's 100-metre freestyle championship, with Janet Campbell, Argentina, inches back in second place. Fraulein Arendt, German, pacemaker for the first 80 metres, was third.

For the second time Miss Mastenbrook lowered the Olympic record as she was clocked in 1:05.9—5-10ths of a second faster than her time in yesterday's semi-finals and 9-10ths of a second faster than the record hung up by Helen Madison at Los Angeles five years ago.

Miss Campbell and Miss Arendt also broke the listed record time in 1:06.4 and 1:06.6, respectively.

In the men's relay event, with Masamori Yusa, Shigeo Sugura, Shoji Taguchi and Shigeo Arai swimming in that order, the Japanese lowered the record of 8:58.4 set by the 1932 Nipponese team in the Olympic final at Los Angeles. Yusa swam the third leg four years ago.

The impressive victory, stamping the young Japanese favorites to take the final, carried them to a thirty-metre triumph over the German runner-up.

The United States, Hungary and Great Britain qualified in the other trial by finishing in that order. The Americans, among them the noted Jack Medina and Ralph Gilman, needed 9:10.4. The Hungarians were 10.4 seconds in their foaming wake with the British team another ten seconds behind.

The British foursome, along with another from Sweden, qualified as the fastest third-place finisher in the three heats.

DICK DEGENER LEADS

At the end of five compulsory events it appeared the fight for the springboard diving gold medal would be between Dick Degener, Detroit, and Marshall Wayne, Miami. Five selective dives to complete the competition will be held tomorrow.

The official summary on the preliminary tests follows: Degener, United States, 74.86 points; Wayne, United States, 72.47; Shibahara, Japan, 70.02; Greene, United States, 68.64; Weiss, Germany, 66.51; Koyang, Japan, 63.29; Leherk, Czechoslovakia, 62.90; Ismail, Egypt, 62.75.

Bob Hooper, sixteen-year-old Vancouver natator, was eliminated in the opening trial of the 400-metre freestyle swim. The husky young Canuck was sixth and last in a heat.

GIBBONS IN GREAT STAND

Puts Up 110 Runs as Albions Defeat Five C's; Incoogs. Beat Cowichan

Scoring a total of 110 before being bowled and caught by Jack Payne, Les Gibbons on Saturday led batsmen in the three cricket fixtures here and up-island.

His total brought the Albions up from a shaky start to defeat Five C's by fifty-six runs. Albions compiled a total of 184 against the churchmen's 128 in the league fixture played at Beacon Hill.

In a friendly at Macdonald Park a team, mainly of youngsters, captained by Meredith, defeated another young side under Hubert Lethaby by 92 runs, the scores being, Meredith's team 163, Lethaby's team 71. Jeaneer, playing for Meredith, was high batsman with 36.

At Dupan, Reg and Godfrey Wenman led the Incoogs to a one-sided verdict over Cowichan. With F. A. Sparks, who put up 43 runs, the Wenman brothers scored 36 and 41, and then took five and four Cowichan wickets for 24 and 28 runs respectively.

Kenmuirs Victors In Final Bowling

Mainland Couple Lead Rinks to Top Berths in Tournament; G. Fairley and J. Miller Win Doubles

Husband and wife claimed two championships in Saturday's finals of the Greater Victoria Lawn Bowling Association tournament, when "Wally" Kenmuir skipped his Vancouver South team to victory in the men's rinks and Mrs. Kenmuir's rink defeated that of Mrs. Wallace, Victoria West, in the women's rinks.

Mrs. Kenmuir won her final game on an extra end, after the teams deadlocked with eleven points each after thirteen ends.

Second in the men's rinks competition was W. Mooney's Cumberland team. The winners in the rinks contests are recognized as the champions of the island.

In the final game of the men's doubles, R. Adam and T. Miller lost to J. Miller and G. Fairley. Both teams were from the Terminal Club, Vancouver.

The mixed rinks competition was won, after a brilliant and exciting exhibition, by W. Flenderleth's Vancouver South team, which defeated a rink led by R. Bell, Dunbar Heights.

Bell pushed the score up to 8-3 in his favor from a tie, in the fourth round, but Flenderleth evened the score in his next three innings.

In the eleventh round the score was still knotted.

Mrs. Flenderleth, playing in second position, rolled her shot where it was practically impossible to displace it in her last effort, leaving Vancouver South with the victory after the skips had played their bowls.

Prizes were presented in the evening at the Foresters' Hall, N. S. Fraser, president of the Victoria association, welcomed the bowlers and called on the following to make presentations: J. R. Reid, Vancouver; Mrs. Whyte, Kerrisdale; Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. T. A. Simmons, Mrs. A. W. Stewart and D. Dewar.

A brief musical programme was presented following the presentation ceremonies. Mrs. T. B. Scott sang "The Kerry Dances" and "My Johann," accompanied by Mrs. Shotbolt. Mrs. J. A. Munro, Winnipeg, contributed "Friends of the Bowling Game" and, in company with Mr. Maben, "Hunting Tower."

A sit-down supper was served during the evening.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Department of National Defence advises that gun practice will be carried out from the Esquimalt defences from 9:30 p.m. to 2 a.m. on August 11 and 14. The range will be 10,000 yards and the arc of fire from Albert Head and Trial Island.

A seventeen-year-old youth was caught late yesterday evening attempting to start a fire in Beacon Hill Park, according to a city police report. The youth was apprehended by H. Ploewman, 723 Kings Road, but he got away on his bicycle while Mr. Ploewman was putting the fire out.

A permit was issued today to Miss F. M. Richards for the construction of a $2,000 five-room dwelling at 443 Cook Street, by the city building inspector's department. Another permit for alterations to a home at 550 Poul Bay Road, at a cost of $1,700, was taken out today by the Royal Trust Company.

Among visitors scheduled to arrive here within the next few days are P. M. Downing, general manager of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company of Northern California; Mrs. Earl Thatcher, wife of a prominent tourist executive of Hawaii, and her father, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Banning Jr. of Los Angeles, according to information received by George I. Warren, publicity commissioner.

An ear of corn which had evidently not made up its mind whether to be one or seven was brought up to the newsmen of The Times on Saturday afternoon by Olive Hanney, ten years old, of 1131 Belmont Avenue. The freak cob, which had six little cobs growing beside it, was grown by Olive and her brother Bernard, thirteen, who have their own vegetable garden at home.

At their regular meeting in the Empress Hotel tomorrow, the Kiwanis Club will hear Dr. T. Z. Koo, famous authority on Chinese thought and affairs. For many years he has been official adviser to his government, and frequently the spokesman of his country at international conferences. He originally intended to conclude his visit to Victoria tonight, but has been prevailed upon to remain over to address the Kiwanis Club.

Fifteen-year-old David Franklin, 1312 Stanley Avenue, suffered shock and head injuries in an odd accident early Saturday evening at the corner of Government and Broughton Streets, according to a city police report. He was cycling along Government Street when he ran into a tow pole with which a car driven by Gordon Gertrude Whitwell, 45 Maquinn Street, was towing a truck driven by William F. Fisher, 45 Maquinn Street. The youth was thrown to the pavement. He was removed to his home in the police ambulance.

PARTY SPLIT GETS CLEARER

Expulsion Threat For Three C.C.F. Members; New Party Talk Persists

Formal expulsion from the B.C. organization of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation of Rev. Robert Connell, Victoria; Jack Price, Vancouver East, and B. Swales, Delta, all members of the Legislature, was pending today and talk persisted that either a new wing of the C.C.F. or a fourth political party would be the outcome of the split over the party's new platform.

While no official announcement was made at a meeting of the provincial executive in Vancouver Saturday, it was understood to have decided to recommend the expulsion of the three members.

No final action will be taken, it was stated, until a full quorum of the executive can be secured. Mr. Connell, it was learned, will go to Vancouver this week and is expected to canvass the entire situation with the other "ex-communicated" members. Political circles were speculating today upon the outcome of these discussions.

Supporters of Mr. Connell expressed the opinion that should he venture to form a new political party he would get backing in the House apart from the C.C.F. ranks. Mr. Connell reserved all comments today.

R. B. Swales, M.P.P., Delta, who made the C.C.F. executive Saturday, said he would sit at the next session of the Legislature as an Independent Socialist. He said he had no personal animus against the provincial executive, but felt he had a right to disagree with them. He thought with Mr. Connell that the recently-adopted platform was not practicable. However, the thought of a separate C.C.F. party, as had been suggested might be formed under Mr. Connell's leadership, had not occurred to him, he said.

NATIVE SONS IN CONVENTION

Vancouver, Aug. 10.—Delegates from all parts of Canada arrived over the week-end to attend the national convention of the Native Sons of Canada, which opened here today.

Mayor G. G. McGeer welcomed the delegates at the opening session. R. W. Carr, Winnipeg, national president, and David J. O'Connell, national secretary of the organization, are in attendance.

should be brought into being a world order in which dwelleth righteousness," he said.

E. E. Richardson, president of the Middleton British-Israel Guild, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

MEET ON TIMBER CONTRACT TODAY

The city's water board was scheduled to meet at 4 o'clock today for final consideration of the Booke Lake watershed timber deal, before the matter comes up for discussion in the City Council this evening.

The timber deal discussion is expected to furnish chief interest at the council meeting, at which matters mainly of a routine nature will also be considered.

SEEK LIST OF STALLHOLDERS

Chamber of Commerce Has Not Yet Secured Names in Willows Studio Drive

The drive of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to obtain the feeling of firms holding stalls in the Industrial Building at the Willows in connection with a plan to leave intact the studio of Central Films Limited housed in that building at the time of the fall fair is being temporarily held up because the chamber is unable to obtain a list of the names of stallholders.

R. H. Ker, chairman of the committee of the chamber which has been appointed to interview the stallholders, said this afternoon the B.C. Agricultural Association had not been willing to provide him with a list. W. H. Mearns, secretary of the agricultural association, told The Times he had no authority to issue the list, but did not think the association would object to the Chamber of Commerce obtaining it.

It is expected the question of the studio will be raised at this evening's meeting of the City Council.

Under the agreement signed by Kenneth J. Bishop, president of Central Films, at the time he took over the Industrial Building, the studio equipment was to be dismantled for one month around the time of the fall fair. However, the expansion of the motion picture industry has been so rapid that a drive is under way to have the studio remain intact.

Police Chief Takes Dip At Qualicum After Years of
"Landlubbing."

For the first time in twenty years
Police Chief Hestley has had a dip in the sea. The chief returned to his office this morning from Qualicum, where he spent his annual leave, with a coat of tan like an indian and with shoulders and arms peeling from the heat of the last two weeks' sun.

He was as enthusiastic about his swimming as a youngster that had taken his first strokes.

The chief's daughter, Mary, was apparently the reason for his swimming. After enjoying the warm waters of Qualicum herself, she persuaded her father to don a bathing suit.

Every day after that the chief was in the water twice a day.

VISITORS HAD GREAT FISHING

sang the praises of Vancouver

They were R. P. Watson of the U.S.

of the Bank of California, both of Portland, who have been touring the island for the last ten days on a fishing trip with their wives.

They had a most successful trip, getting fourteen on their last day.
They reported the cohoes taking bucktail flies around Maple Bay.

They left this morning for Port Angeles, where they will continue fishing on their return journey.

"CEILING ZERO"
AT THE PLAZA

There was a lull in production one day at the First National studio while a squad of property men armed with dip-nets, swarmed over the cat-walks, seeking to capture a pee-wee which had slipped in.

The bird insisted on singing during a dialogue between James Cagney and Stuart Erwin in "Ceiling Zero," the Comopolitan production, which is now being shown at the Plaza Theatre.

In the second feature are James
Dunn and Arline Judge in "Welcome Home."

Amateur Contest
On the Show Boat

A particularly strong contingent of aspiring amateurs is scheduled for the eighth amateur talent contest tonight on the Show Boat.

Curley and his harmonious harvesters have a special programme of popular mountain music arranged for the two hours of mirth which has attracted the largest Show Boat audiences to date. They will sing this week's successful limerick verses and the names of the winners will be announced.

The limerick contest has brought hundreds of original verses through the mail, according to the Show Boat captain, who will direct the programme as usual.

Powerful Story
Will Be Shown

Hollywood put on its thinking cap and proceeded to make a boldly intelligent production of one of the most intense stories of modern literature. Columbia, in making a film out of Dostoevsky's novel, "Crime and Punishment," has done the public a service.

The picture will open tomorrow at the Dominion Theatre.

Barb Judgment was shown in casting the film. Those who are familiar with the classic will know that Edward Arnold is a perfect choice as the canny, subtle yet dominating Police Inspector, and that Peter Lorre cannot be surpassed as the murderer, Raskolnikov.

Maria, Tala Birell, Robert
Allen, Elizabeth Biegan, Douglas
Dumbrille, Gene Lockhart and Mrs.
Patrick Campbell are all uniformly fine in their supporting roles.

A second feature on this programme is "And So They Were Married," starring Melvyn Douglas and Mary Astor.

COLORED FILM
AT THE ATLAS

Pioneer Pictures' officials assert that their current success, "Dancing Pirate," a musical romance which is expected to transcend "La Cucu-cha," emerged from six months of intensive, selective reading, during which more than 5,000 original stories, plays and novels were considered and cast aside. The picture is now being shown at the Atlas Theatre.

The production is the first feature-length dancing romance ever made with the new, improved Technicolor process.

It features Charles Collins, young Broadway actor making his screen debut as a dancing sensation; Frank Morgan in a comical portrayal, and Steffi Duna.

Wheeler and Woolsey in "Silly Bil-lies" is also being shown.

Tochia Mori—pronounced "Toe-shee-a Mor-ee"—a nineteen-year-old resident of Los Angeles, was discovered behind the counter of a curio store there by Director Frank Capra, and was signed immediately to play
the colorful role of the beautiful
Mah-Ji in Columbia's picturization of
"The Bitter Tea of General Yen," from Grace Zaring Stone's best selling novel. It is showing at the Columbia Theatre today.

This role is by all odds the finest Chinese characterization ever offered any girl in the movies. Miss Mori's role is secondary only to those enacted by Barbara Stanwyck and Bill
Asther, the two leads in the picture.

In the second feature on this programme is Richard Cromwell in
"Name the Woman," with Arline
Judge.

"Escapade" at
The Oak Bay

In "Escapade" at the Oak Bay Theatre today, tomorrow and Wednesday, William Powell plays one of his most engaging roles, and at the same time introduces Luise Rainer, a flashing new personality to the Hollywood screen.

It is the story of an artist whose flirtations land him in trouble with the jealous husband of a former sweetheart. Through unusual dramatic twists, comedy, romance and music the story unfolds itself. Three big musical interludes add spectacle and melody. One is the grand opera sequence in which the voice of the late Enrico Caruso is reproduced from his own recordings with life-like fidelity.

A magnificent grand ball scene introduces a new song hit, "You're All I Need," and a Viennese waltz of haunting melody.

CAPITOL THEATRE
Singing five great new song hits and performing astonishing new dance routines, the talented Shirley Temple is now at the Capitol Theatre in what has been pronounced her greatest hit,
"The Poor Little Rich Girl."

A superlative cast supports Shirley in this new Fox production including
Alice Faye, Gloria Stuart, Jack Haley,
Michael Whalen, Sara Haden, Jane
Darwell, Claude Gillingwater, Paul
Stanton and Henry Armetta.

ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL REASONS why there are so many old maids, why there are so many divorcees and why there are so many hoodlums girls and boys is because the big, roomy, old-fashioned house, with solid doors and an attic and a cellar, has been supplanted by modernistic structures in which there is not room in which to change your mind; that offers no more privacy than a goldfish bowl, and that is no more like a real home than a mess of spinach is like a dinner.

The domestic virtues and amenities have to have the proper soil in which to grow and flourish and this is not furnished by a little two-by-four cubicle in which everybody is forever in everybody else's way, and treading on each other's toes because there is nowhere else to step. Family life, ever an ordeal trying on the stoutest nerves, is only endurable when it has plenty of elbow room. And if this is breaking up, as it is claimed, it is because fathers and mothers, husbands and wives, brothers and sisters are packed together like sardines in a box. Home, sweet, sweet home was never a place where Johnny slept in the dining-room in a camouflaged buffet; Mary couldn't go to bed at night until the company left and she could make up the couch in the living-room, and nothing but the grace of God enables us to really love those with whom we have to share the bathroom.

We talk a lot about the effect of environment in molding our character, but, in reality, we haven't given half enough consideration to the subject, or else we would realize what an important part space has in determining our destinies and how much better it is to be comfortable than to have a ritzy address.

That many of the evils of our day are directly attributable to the bird houses in which human beings are forced to live cannot be denied. For one thing, it is the cause of the continually increasing old maid crop and, for another, it is the instigator of the parked automobile and the petting party. In the old days when every house had its parlor, with good solid doors, that was sacred to the girls and their beaux, young men spent their evenings visiting Sally or Maud or Gertrude and did the kind of courting that leads to the altar.

But now when a young man has to spend an evening in the bosom of her family if he goes to see a girl, and have Mother and Father, Sister, Aunt Ellen and Grandpa listen in on every word he says, he simply doesn't. He telephones Sally to meet him at the corner and they step out to places to dine and dance, which may be lots of fun, but doesn't lead to marriage. A girl has a hundred per cent better chance of wangling a proposal out of a man against a background of her home than she has at a night club.

Why a kitchenette apartment is not cited as a correspondent in many a divorce case, I don't know, because it is so often at the bottom of the whole trouble. Somehow, even the most devoted husbands and wives have to come up for air now and then. They have to have a little solitude, a little privacy, a little leeway in which to do as they please without trespassing on the other's property; and if they can't have this, if there is nowhere where they can get off by themselves and think a few thoughts of their own and drop cigarette ashes on the floor, or leave hair in the comb, or read in bed, they are bound to get on each other's nerves.

Nothing short of the grand passion can stand an overdose of another's society and being always under surveillance and having to tell why you do everything you are doing. Many a trip to Reno would be saved if husbands and wives had not had to live so that they got a perpetual close-up of each other's faults.

And, of course, cramped living quarters are the first aid to juvenile delinquency. There is nothing a child can do in a small room except wreck the furniture and break the windows and raise Cain and when his poor, tired, overworked mother gets to the point where she can't stand the racket any longer she sends him on the streets to play and get the education of the street and make his friends among the gamins of the street and only too often end, as so many of the boys of the street do, in criminal gangs.

Nobody is to blame, of course. It is just the way things are. Big houses cost money. Space is luxury. But if the new Housing Commission could see its way to build bigger houses with more rooms in them, it would do a great thing for the moral uplift of the country.

Uncle Wiggily and the Sea Gull

By HOWARD R. GARIS

The animal children were playing hopscotch in front of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, while the old gentleman sat on the porch watching them. It was a lovely bright day, just the sort of day as Baby Bunty said, for hopscotch. The rabbits had marked out the squares on the ground with a stick, and Jiggie Flapjaw, the honey-bee, was having his turn when along came Bully and Bawly No-Tail.

"May we play?" Bully asked. "I feel the need for exercise!"

Jiggie stopped in one of the squares and said: "Ho--the frog boys! So you want to play hopscotch? Now don't you think up to see if Uncle Wiggily had heard him--because Jiggie liked to show off every once in a while, you remember."

"What a lot of big words!" Bawly murmured. "What do you mean by that, Jiggie?"

"Why, I mean that you hop all the time, don't you? And they had never seen us easily. That's what I mean by unfair advantage. Jiggie said that he had heard him--because Jiggie liked to show off every once in a while, you remember."

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

TUESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1936

Adverse planetary aspects rule today, according to astrology. The stars encourage caution in all things, especially in financial matters. It is more fortunate to sell than to buy.

Bankers now come under a rule of the stars that brings many great perplexities and problems, especially in financial affairs. It is not a favorable day for negotiating loans.

Advertising under this planetary direction should be profitable. Novel ideas in all forms of publicity now will be in demand and methods of dubious character will be introduced in political circles.

Newspapers and magazines will profit exceedingly and this should encourage the distribution of periodicals. Extensive reading will create many confused impressions regarding public issues.

Girls are under a rule of the stars which promotes diversions in the way of interesting contacts in social entertainments. Young men may be easily impressed while this configuration continues.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of financial peril, which may be avoided by careful management. Loss through fraud is indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be intellectual and gifted. These subjects of Leo usually are dignified and concerned about dress and personal appearance.

Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania political leader, was born on this day, 1865. Others who have celebrated it are a birthday include Robert Van Zandt Bosworth, actor, 1887, and Robert G. Ingersoll, orator and lawyer, 1833.

Worst Drought In U.S. History

Washington, Aug. 10. — "The drought in the interior of the country this year is measurably more severe than any other of record in the climatological history of the country," is the basic conclusion of the weekly summary of crop reports issued here by the United States Weather Bureau.

With four months of the growing season now over, the present plant growth period is the driest on record in eight interior states: North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. It is the second driest on record in Ohio, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Kansas and Montana.

The last crucial seven days, reports the weather bureau, showed a break in the severe July heat but no rain except locally through the midwest. Throughout the corn belt the chief crop is bad and steadily deteriorating.

Cotton is generally favorable with the rains of the last week helping the southeastern section.

Ten years ago it was figured that Santa Fe, New Mexico, drew in 2,000,000 dollars a year on account of its historic and archaeological interest, and the tourist business is considered only partly developed.
